EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE appetite for reform grows with what it feeds on. Having formulated a Land bill, which Mr. Gladstone will be asked to pass at the next session, and which is even more sweeping than the Irish measure, the Scotch Chamber of Agriculture has also drafted a bill providing for the abolition of entail and primogeniture. If that were passed, to of the corner-stones of British aristocracy would be taken away.

THE efforts made in Canada and England to direct British emigration to the Canadian northwest along the route of their proposed Pacific Railroad are meeting with a larger measure of success than our own countrymen have been ready to admit. The province of Manitabo, immediately north of Minnesota and Dakota, is a remarkable instance of rapid progress in civilized population resembling somewhat the wondrous growth of our own western territories.

AFFAIRS in Tunis are rapidly going from bad to worse. By their foolish disregard of native superstitions the French troops have provoked an intense feeling of animosity agaiust them, and the contest that is going on is rapidly assuming the aspect of a religious war. It begins to look as though when they began the Tunisian campaign the French were undertaking more than they could profitably or safely accomplish, and that sooner or later the enterprise will have to be abandoned.

ACCORDING to Captain Hooper, the claim of the Dominion to the prior possession of Wrangell Land is absolutely untenable. He asserts that Wrangell never landed there, but merely imagined that he saw land thereabouts. As a proof of his incertitude in the premises, it is alleged that somebody else was sent out afterward to make verification and he only succeeded in inspecting the point from a distance. Captain Hooper's party having really landed and raised the American flag, there can be no doubt the right of possession.

HON. SIMON CAMERON, who looks in excellent health, arrived in Philadelphia on Monday evening from New York, and left the Gerard House on Tuesday for home. He says that he is out of politics now and that he does not trouble his mind with the consideration of political affairs. He had no doubt that the Republican party would be successful in the contest for state treasurer, and believed that Mr. Wolf would not poll 10,000 votes outside Philadelphia. Mr. Wolf, he said, had never given any evidence of his fitness for the office he aspires to, and the only thing that had brought him into prominence was his love for notoriety.

FOR a man who has so much to say about oppression and tyranny as Mr. Parnell, that gentleman himself seems to be a good deal of an autocrat in a small way. He recently issued orders that a particular candidate for parliamentary honors was not to be supported, and a branch of the Land League which disobeyed his instructions has now been dissolved. Mr. Parnell does not always respect law and order himself, as his record in the House of Commons testifies; but he evidently appreciates the importance of enforcing the obedience of others, and understands that little can be accomplished unless discipline is preserved.

The Duty of Republicans.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania have reached a point where it is important for them to take their bearings and wisely steer their course. They are bound to consider in a high and patriotic spirit what they owe to themselves and what they owe to their Republican brethren throughout the land. They must remember not merely the immediate impulses of the hour but the vital and transcendent interests of the future. It is easy, in a moment of unreflecting passion and in striking at the abuses which have grown up, to pull down the temple of Republican organization; but it is the work of time and patriotism and statesmanship to build up a sound and enduring superstructure. There may be a reckless leadership which is disastrous and which justifies resistance; and there may be also a method of opposition which is equally inconsiderate and destructive.

What is the duty of honest, sincere, earnest Republicans in this campaign? What is the duty of those who rightfully class themselves as Independent Republicans? First of all they are pre-eminently patriotic Republicans—Republicans from conviction; Republicans from a profound devotion to true Republican principles; Republicans from an intelligent apprehension of the vital importance of Republican ascendency to the highest welfare of the country. They recognize no man as superior to themselves in fidelity to sound Republicanism. They are party men, and understand full well that political principle and public ends are to be advanced through party organization. They know that the flag of liberty was successfully planted at Yorktown and Gettysburg, not by the broken blows of straggling guerillas, but by the united onset of the grand army.

The only sound basis of lasting party organization is the free union of all who hold the same great principles. What is the true position of the Independent Republicans? Simply this—they say to those who have been identified with a different element: "We ask nothing for ourselves which we do not fully concede to you; we recognize that you are just as essential to the party as we are; we grant you the same right to a free voice, to a respectful consideration and to all your just strength which we claim for ourselves. We only insist upon a free vote, an honest count and fair representation. What we resist is an arbitrary and usurped control; what we demand is an honest rule and an honest majority. We seek only equal rights and fair play. If with this free, untrammeled popular expression you can beat us, if the real majority of Republicans are with you, then you are entitled to lead; if not, then it is your duty, as it is ours, to let the majority rule. Our cardinal, decisive principle is free speech, a free vote and free representation."

This is the impregnable position of the Independent Republicans, and this high principle requires them to fight their battles within the party until it shall become clear that within the party they cannot secure a fair expression or obtain their just rights. That time has not yet come. If the Independent Republicans are true to themselves, if they shall be wise and united, if they shall not sacrifice the strength of their position by ill-considered action, that time will never come, because in entering upon the succeeding battles they will speak with such clearness and force that no power will dare defy them. After the decision of the party tribunal to go outside of the party and unfurl the Independent flag is revolution, and revolution is justifiable only when all other measures of redress fail. That extreme resort remains as the reserved right of all patriotic citizens, and with such a weapon the Independent Republicans can in the future protect themselves and protect the principles and he cause they cherish. But they are not yet ready to surrender the battle within the party; they are not yet ready to abandon the good old Republican flag and leave it wholly in the hands of the machine; they are not yet ready to go outside of the party and thus sacrifice the right to a free voice in its future councils. They want to rescue the party from admitted evils, but in cutting off the tumors they do not want to kill the patient.

But will not the election of General Baily, especially in the face of an Independent movement, irretrievably establish the machine and crush out all independence within the party? No—not any more than the success of 1879 did; not any more than the control of the Convention of 1880 did. In spite of these triumphs the Independent strength has gone on increasing until at Harrisburg the other day it mustered more than a third of the Convention. The Independent Republicans made no real fight; they remained passive in the faith of an agreement; they opened their batteries only ten days before the Convention after most of the delegates had been elected, any yet they rallied nearly a hundred votes. If they stand together within the party and remain both firm and prudent they can command the future—not necessarily for the exclusive triumph of their own wing any more than of the other, but for fair play and just consideration all around. The movement of Mr. Wolf is not the movement of the Independent leaders or the Independent masses, and hence its failure and the election of General Baily will not prejudice the Independent cause in the future.

It is said that Mr. Wolfe's proceeding is the logical sequence of the Independent revolt in the Legislature last winter, and is entitled to the same support. This is not true. That revolt was simply an appeal from the constrained dictation of the caucus to the free action of the Legislature. It never for a single moment jeopardized the election of a Republican United States Senator. This campaign of Mr. Wolfe, on the contrary, if it has any effect at all, will throw the State into Democratic hands. Thus the difference between the two movements is as wide as the chasm between Republican victory and Democratic success. We do not impeach Mr. Wolfe's motives, but we dissent from his method. The great body of the Independent representatives appreciate the broad distinction, and see that both the principle and the policy command them to stand by the Republican flag. The Stalwarts, the Davies, the Lees, the Kauffmans, the Loars, the Koontez, the Geists, the Martins and all the other recognized leaders of the Independent forces, except Mr. Wolf himself, sustain the Republican ticket, and where they lead the Independent masses can safely follow.

The duty of the hour is plain. The Republican party has too great a work yet before it to justify any Republican in imperiling its strength or its success. We want to redeem the Republicanism of this Commonwealth from its faults, but in doing so we want to give it new vitality and moral vigor, instead of striking it down and overthrowing the Republicanism of the Union with the Republicanism of Pennsylvania. Let us stand together in defense of the the great principle of POPULAR RULE AND FREE REPRESENTATION, but let us also uphold and carry forward the Republican flag.—Philadelphia Press.

MR. ARTHUR'S course must be decidedly discouraging to the noble army of office-seekers, the advance-guard of which has already made its appearance upon the battle field. So far from showing any eagerness to exercise his most envied privilege, he persistently refrains from making any appointments at present, and shows a lack of interest in the subject which many people find it impossible to understand. Those who had an idea that as soon as he went into office Mr. Arthur would turn things upside-down, can now see that their calculations were based upon erroneous promises.

A Popular Republican Victory.

That was essentially and conspicuously a Republican assemblage which met in the city of New Nork yesterday to speak for the Republicans of the great Empire State. There were men there of strong convictions and positive character, representing opposing methods of party government and diverse personal preferences. The Convention, opened under one control, was conducted and brought to a close under another. Yet, through all the proceedings of a body the result of a stirring conflict of sentiment, there was fair play and free speech for everybody, a graceful yielding of the signally defeated minority, a determined but dignified and moderate bearing of a majority which had come to its estate through hard fighting in an animated struggle.

The spirit of true Republicanism filled and mastered the Convention. The imposing majority of the Garfield Republicans made them strong enough to wield the Convention as they pleased. They had a giant's strength; they used it like Republicans striving only for the common good. Their overshadowing supremacy was the splendid triumph of a spontaneous uprising of the people, an evidence of devotion to the principles which have made the Republican party great in the glory of great achievements—a demand for a revision of the lines of party government within the State—an indorsement of its purest and noblest ideals.

The majority felt that it owed its opportunity to a constituency that would judge it by a high standard. Without proscribing any Republican or any element, it was expected to voice the popular will; without conceding any vital point of its fairly-won supremacy, it was required, if possible, to bring harmony out of discord. This the majority earnestly endeavored to do. In the speeches, in the ticket, in the entire proceedings, it has laid down an honorable basis for harmony which all Republicans of the State can accept without parting with anything worth holding. In this the Garfield Republicans have voiced the heart and the intelligence of the great Republican masses not only of New York, but of the whole country.

The moderate and conciliatory tone of the speeches of Senator Miller and Mr. Depew echoed the sentiment of every Republican who respects and loves the whole Republican party before any faction of it. They breathe the broad, patriotic catholic spirit which made the Republican party and which must preserve it. They strike the keynote of a great reunion of all elements for a strengthening of the whole organization.

It was unequivocally a Garfield Convention. It was as pronouncedly an Arthur Convention. Cherishing the memory of the departed Chief and heartily indorsing the objects of his Administration, it was as earnest in its sympathy with President Arthur and the promise of its cordial co-operation with him in his endeavors to harmonize and exalt the party and promote the welfare of the whole people.

The ticket is strong and popular. It is well balanced in every way and goes before the voters of New York with every prospect of commanding their approval. The Stalwart managers feel their defeat, but they recognize the popular force of it and they will not sulk. The whole party will unite to carry the ticket to victory, for on that issue is staked the success of President Arthur's Administration, which no Republican will voluntarily place in jeopardy.

The people have triumphed, and the party, with renewed vigor and exalted ambition, marches to battle under the shadow of victory.—Philadelphia Press.

Some of the anti-ring Democrats are annoyed by the rumor that if Orange Noble is elected Blake Walters, who ran the State Treasury under "Square-Timber" Noyes will resume his old position as Chief Clerk.

MR. BLAINE may always be relied on to do the right thing at the right time. In two National Conventions his honorable ambition, fostered by a large element of the Republican party, had been balked. President Garfield's tender of the Secretaryship of State came and beheld the broad-minded, patriotic mood in which it found the brilliant leader! The kindliness, dignity, unreserved sympathy, and loyal devotion of that letter of acceptance, written with no thought that it ever would reach the world, will challenge the generous admiration of every man who can appreciate true nobility of character. Mr. Blaine not only pledged all that he was and all that he hoped to be to the official for the term of his election; but, in terms that must have touched so sensitive a nature as President Garfield's he gave his heart to the man and declared that the brilliant success of his first term must win him a second. For friendship's sake, for party's sake, and for country's sake James G. Blaine, the strong leader of men and idol of an immense following, voluntarily merged his own hopes and interests in those of his chief. There is not such another example of unselfish friendship and loyality on record.—Philadelphia Press.

A CORRESPONDENT of the associated press has interviewed Gen. Grant and reports him as saying:

"Many of Garfield's appointments were pathetically bad, serious mistakes, while some of them showed the boldest ingratitude. The worst were those dictated by Blaine, whose appointment to the Cabinet was the first and greatest blunder of the series." There was a time when Gen. Grant had the reputation of great wisdom, because he had the shrewdness to keep his mouth shut, but now he has opened it to no good purpose, and he will gain no friends by trying to bring discredit upon the administration of our martyred President. We believe the truth is that Grant has been feasted and flattered until he has become so pubbled up in his own conceit that he imagines that he knows it all. Indeed, of him it may be said; "I am Sir Oracle, and when I open my mouth let no dog bark."

SENATOR Voorhees made some remarks at the opening of the Atlanta Exhibition which indicate that he has lately experienced a change of heart. He dwelt upon the importance of fostering native industries by affording them the protection from foreign competition which is secured by the protective policy, and he gave it as his opinion that the day was coming when the south, having established manufactures of its own, would as heartily advocate the protective system as any of the eastern or middle States. These are views in which we heartily concur, but that they should have Mr. Voorhees for their exponent is not a little surprising. The gentleman from Indiana seems to have very thoroughly and intelligently learned the lesson which the result of the Presidential election in his State was calculated to teach. His ideas about a tariff for revenue only have been revolutionized.

AS it is semi-officially announced that France and England are determined to preserve their amicable relations in regard to the Egyptian question, those who are accustomed to watch the tortuous course of European diplomacy will suspect an incipient quarrel. England would gladly assume supreme control in Egypt if the other Powers had no objection, but unfortunately France has hitherto show equally ardent aspirations in the same direction. The Khedive is heavily in debt to France as well as to England, and the French have a pecuniary interest in the canal, which affords a reasonable basis for their claims. Yet for a sufficient consideration France might perhaps be induced to come to terms.

BLAINE TO GARFIELD.

The Letter Accepting the Secretaryship of State in 1880.

In January last a gentleman of some political prominence in the western part of this State visited Mentor, and was discussing with the President-elect the probable composition of his Cabinet. The only member then definitely settled upon was Blaine for Secretary of State. The President-elect gave to the gentleman a copy of Blaine's letter accepting the tender of the State Department, which he had previously read to him.

The gentleman to whom the copy was given thinks he violates no confidence in permitting its publication.

WASHINGTON, December 20, 1880.

My Dear Garfield:

Your generous invitation to enter your Cabinet as Secretary of State has been under consideration for more than three weeks. The thought had really never occured to my mind until at our late conference you presented it with such cogent arguments in its favor and with such warmth of personal friendship in aid of your kind offer.

I know that an early answer is desirable, and I have waited only long enough to consider the subject in all its bearings and to make up my mind definitely and conclusively. I now say to you, in the same cordial spirit in which you have invited me, that I accept the position.

It is no affectation for me to add that I make this decision not for the honor of the promotion it gives me in the public service, but because I think I can be useful to the country and to the party—useful to you as the responsible leader of the party and the great head of the Government.

I am influenced somewhat, perhaps, by the shower of letters I have received urging me to accept—written to me in consequence of the mere unauthorized newspaper report that you had been pleased to offer me the place. While I have received these letters from all sections of the Union, I have been especially pleased and even surprised at the cordial and widely-extended feeling in my favor throughout New England, where I had expected to encounter local jealousy and, perhaps, rival aspiration.

In our new relation I shall give all that I am and all that I can hope to be freely and joyfully to your service. You need no pledge of my loyality in heart and in act. I should be false to myself did I not prove true both to the great trust you confide to me and to your personal and political fortunes in the present and in the future. Your Administration must be made brilliantly successful and strong in the confidence and pride of the people—not at all directing its energies for re-election, and yet compelling that result by the logic of events and by the imperious necessities of the situation.

To the most desirable consummation I feel that, next to yourself, I can possibly contribute as much influence as any other one man. I say this from no egotism or vain-glory, but merely as a deduction from a plain analysis of the political forces which have been at work in the country for five years past and which have been significantly shown in two great National Conventions.

I accept it as one of the happiest circumstances connected with the affair that in allaying my political fortunes with yours—or, rather, for the time merging mine in yours—my heart goes with my head, and that I carry to you not only political support but personal and devoted friendship. I can but regard it as somewhat remarkable that two men of the same age, entering Congress at the same time, influenced by the same aims, and cherishing the same ambitions should never, for a single moment in eighteen years of close intimacy, have had a misunderstanding or a coolness, and that our friendship has steadily grown with our growth and strengthened with our strength.

It is this fact which has lead me to the conclusion embodied in this letter, for however much, my dear Garfield, I might admire you as a statesman, I would not enter your Cabinet if I did not believe in you as a man and love you as a friend. Always faithfully yours.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

THE first blow has been dealt, and none too soon, at the graveyard traffic. Governor Hoyt's action is a step in the right direction; now let the assault be continued until all the ghouls have been hunted down. It is easy to talk of the immorality of Mormonism, but the reproach comes with an ill grace from the State while premiums for murder are more or less publicly hawked around.

JACK FROST is a regular morning visitor now, and his appearance is a strong reminder of the rapidly approaching winter.

Poetry.

The Way of the World.

Thro' summer rays a belted brown Bee flew;
He kissed the gentle Violet that grew
Down in the valley's most secluded place.
"In all the world there is no fairer face,"
He said, "Wait here—I will come back to you.
Trust me, sweet Violet,
I'll not forget."

Gayly he sped across the summer day,
Down from a garden wall upon his way
A red Rose leaned. So sensuous, so bright,
She touched his southern nature with delight.
"Tell me, fair one," he only paused to say—
"Tell me thy name." "Come near,"
She said, "so thou canst hear."

Robbed of his strength, and of his honor shorn
(The rose had dropped her leaves and shown the thorn),
He stood at last, all sated with the blisses
Of her caressing arms and languid kisses—
A thing for Bees to pity and to scorn.
"Sweet Violet, my bride,
I come to thee," he cried.

He comes to find a blithe young Butterfly
Wooing his Violet with tender sigh.
She says him nay—refuses what he seeks—
But lets him press a light kiss on her cheeks.
Enter the Bee; he gives a piercing cry—
"False one, adieu—
I cannot wed with you—
You are untrue, untrue."

The insect-world looks on in sad dismay,
"Alas, poor Bee! she's driven him astray.
The jilting jade!
Just see the wreck she's made."
Thus runs the world away.

Our Story Teller.

Garnet's Mistake.

A little, low-browed, yellow cottage, sleepily nestling 'neath a canopy of branching hemlocks. Here dwelt Mrs. Darley, or the Widow Darley, as she was commonly called by the inhabitants of Linden. Here, since the departure of her niece, Garnet, her brother Robert's child, for the city to learn the dressmaking trade, which event occurred a couple of years ago, she had lived alone, subsisting on the produce she raised on the few acres of ground attached to the cottage, which she managed to sell or barter away for groceries at a thriving town three miles distant.

Day was fast verging into dusk. The Widow Darley sat by the window busily engaged in darning a wretched looking stocking over a mammoth mock orange.

'Well, I declare!'

This exclamation was caused by the rumbling old stage coach that daily passed her house, stopping at her house, from which alighted her niece, who ran lightly up the walk and into the house, followed by a strongly-built man bearing on his shoulders a good-sized trunk, which was deposited in the hall before making his exit.

'How d'ye do, Aunt Susan?' with a hug and a kiss. 'Not a slave to rheumatism, I hope?'

'Yes,' replied the Widow Darley, who, by the way, was a tiny woman of fifty, with a face not unlike the wrinkled apples that grew on the tree in the garden, 'the monster has me again in his clutches. But, whatever brings you home? You haven't been sent adrift again, surely?'

'Yes, aunt,' a tremor of pain threading her voice in spite of her efforts to appear unconcerned, 'times are dull, and Madam Brown has so little work that she deemed it expedient to dispense with the services of those girls who proved the most incompetent. But, never mind, aunt! I see I am needed at home. How are things prospering?'

'Not at all,' in her most dolorous tone; the place is fairly weighed down with mortgage, and for aught I know to the contrary, Mr. Lincoln may forclose any day. Yes any day may find us without a shelter.

'Never mind, aunt, don't worry. I'll see what can be done in the morning.'

The next forenoon, about ten o'clock, with a hoe swung over her shoulder, and a half bushel basket in her hand, in which reposed a half dozen potato bugs and a dainty repast done up in a newspaper, she trudged to the potato lot to see what could be done, for the widow's niece, Garnet Embers, was a girl equal to any emergency. She was a slender, graceful girl, neither blonde nor brunette, but a combination of both, a pretty a creature as one could care to see. See reached the lot and set to work in earnest, but somehow she made little progress. Oh! if some strong-handed masculine creature was but around. What short work he would make of the job.

At this juncture the report of a gun sounded near, and Garnet looked up just in time to see a chipmonk running along the fence dividing her lot from Mr. Denver's, topple over, and an instant after a man in gray, muscularly framed and as handsome as Apollo, with a wide sombrero shading his face, appeared in sight.

'Here, young man, come here! I want you to help in digging a few bushels of potatoes. I will see that you do not incur Mr. Denver's displeasure by doing as I desire.'

'All right, miss; I'll be with you as soon as I can exchange my gun for a hoe, for I suppose you intend to keep on with your digging?'

'Certainly. Now don't be long about it. That's a good man.'

She was earnestly digging away when he vaulted over the fence and stood by her side hoe in hand, his hat lower down on his face than ever. Garnet paid no attention to his personal appearance. He was nothing but a hired man, so whether ugly or comely what mattered it to her? Old Sol, an inflamed ball of heat, glowed upon them savagely, and the perspiration stood in beaded drops upon their faces as they toiled on, Mr. Denver's hired man making no better progress with his row of potatoes than Garnet with hers. The girl glanced at him contemptuously.

'You don't succeed any better than I—a girl. You are the greenest hand at digging potatoes I ever saw. Mr. Denver will not keep you long, I know.'

'Perhaps not,' he said, in a nonchalant way. 'I am a green hand at it I acknowledge, but I guess I can learn after a while. See, miss, if I have not done my work well.'

'Oh, my,' she exclaimed vexatiously, 'how stupid—how very stupid you are. You have not got the potatoes half out of the hill and those you have got out are well nigh chopped to pieces by the hoe. You wield that instrument as if it was your intention to mutilate, to destroy. You need dig no more.'

'Well,' leaning contentedly against the hoe handle, and wiping the perspiration off his forehead with the daintiest of white handkerchiefs, from which emanated the perfume of violets, 'what next shall I do? Issue your commands, Miss—Miss—'

'Embers, young man, and an especial friend of your master, Mr. Denver. Well, as you do not manage to hoe adroitly enough to be anything but detrimental to aunty's potatoes, you may as well take the halfbushel basket, gather them up and put them in the bags. They are peachblows, and are sure to bring a good price in market, Mr.—'

'You may call me Bob,' he said, with a comical grimace. 'Mr. Denver calls me that.'

'Well, Bob, to work! Don't lag, and when noon comes you may share my lunch with me under a tree.'

'What makes you laugh so immoderately, Bob? It is not polite of you, and I shall certainly report your ill-behavior to Mr. Lenver.'

'Pray don't, Miss Embers,' with an affected humility. 'I couldn't help it, indeed I couldn't.'

'Humph!' was all the answer she vouchsafed him as she went on her digging, and believed he was making fun of her.

The minutes crept up, 12 o'clock came, and Bob was waxing savagely hungry. As he emptied the fourth basket of potatoes, he said:

'It is noon, now, Miss Embers I'm sure. See! Old Sol is directly over us. Come, let us have our lunch under the apple tree. I'm hungry as a bear.'

'I, too,' acknowledged Garnet. 'Get that parcel yonder, Bob, and don't you squeeze it, else you'll crush the cranberry tarts in it. Aunt Sarah made them, and she is a famous pastry cook.'

'Cranberry tarts!' his mouth beginning to water. 'You bet I'll hold it lightly. I am especially fond of them. But what delicacies does the luncheon contain, Miss Embers, prepared by your hands?'

'Not any, Bob,' with something that sounded like a sigh. 'I am no better cook than dressmaker. Dear me! I wonder what I am good for, anyhow!'

'Good to look at,' he muttered, under his breath, wishing that she would toss off the sunbonnet that almost concealed her face. Then aloud, 'Good to dig potatoes, I suppose.'

At which both laughed heartily, and together they wended their way to the apple tree, weighed down with golden fruit, at whose foot they were to partake of their lunch. A musical streamlet threaded its way over a pebbly bed, washing the roots of the apple tree as it ran merrily on. Here on the grass in sound of its babbling voice, they seated themselves and prepared to partake of the repast which Garnet began to spread daintily out on a newspaper, first throwing off the offending sunbonnet, which motion caused the red-brown hair to tumble about her face, making a picture at which Titian would have raved.

'By Jupiter!' ejaculated Bob, 'she is even prettier than I imagined. She is a perfect witch.'

He had doffed his sombrero, and his picturesque, Moorish face, illumined by darkly splendid eyes, Garnet thought the handsomest in the world.

'If he were not a hired man,' she mused, 'or even had ever so small an income, I believe I could love him. As it is, it is simply ridiculous. I will sound him to see if he is as intellectual as he looks.'

She did so, and they fell into conversation so agreeable to both that time passed away unheeded. A man's voice aroused them. It was Mr. Denver's.

'Heig-ho!' he cried, in a hearty tone, 'having a picnic on a small scale? Plaguey mean of Miss Garnet, not to extend an invitation to your nearest neighbor. When did you arrive?'

'Last night. And Mr. Denver,' as they shook hands, 'I took the liberty of soliciting help from your hired man in digging a few bushels of potatoes to take to market.'

'Ha, ha, ha!' The good man's laugh rang out loud and clear. 'Did you really take him for a hired man? Why, this is my guest, Mr. Lincoln—the gentleman who owns the mortgage on your aunt's place. He, to use an expression in vogue, is fairly rolling in riches. Ha, ha, ha, ha! my hired man! Miss Embers, Mr. Lincoln.

He strolled away, and the two were left alone. No reply; the fair face was buried low in her hands, and Garnet felt as if she could never meet his gaze again. How came she to make such an egregious blunder! Well, no apology would be admissible now, and she must brave it out as soon as possible.

'Garnet,' and now the hands were removed from the flushed face and held in his warm clasp, 'listen to me. You have made a mistake, and the way you can rectify it is to accept me as your husband. Will you?'

And plucky little Garnet, with a coquettish glance from under her jet black lashes, said, "I will."

Young Fools That Marry.

We clip this article from Peck's Milwaukee Sun: An exchange has the following item which may seem to be all right, but it will get some young fellow's back broke yet:

An Illinois justice has decided that 'courting is a public necessity, and must not be interruped: therefore if a young man wanted to kiss a girl he might put her father out of the room first if he liked.'

The publication of the above item may cause some smart young man to do something he will regret. The lame, sickly looking father of a girl may come into the parlor some night and find the warm haired youth on the sofa with the girl, and when the old man speaks of it being time to put a stop to such nonsense, the young man, with the above judicial decision in his mind, will tell his prospective father-in-law to wipe off his vest and go to bed. The old man will then spit on his hands and grasp the young man by the county seat and tie him up in a double bow knot, and pin a scarf pin on him, and throw him out on the path to the gate, and then he will turn and slap the girl across where the dress is pleated, and she will go up stairs with her hand on her heart, as it were, and the old man will jump up and say, 'Whoop!'

The young men of this country have got gall enough about visiting girls in the evening, at their homes, without filling their heads with any such ideas in regard to their legal rights. There are very few fathers that would quietly submit to being told to go away by a young man with a striped necktie and pants too short at the bottom. They haven't, generally, got a second shirt, and they are no more qualified to get married than a steer is to preach. He should be reasoned with, and if he will not quit it until he is able to support a wife, and to know who he loves and the difference between love and passion, he should be quarantined. Nine tenths of the unhappy marriages are the result of green human calves being allowed to run at large in the society pasture, without any pokes on them. They marry, and have children before they do moustaches, they are fathers of twins before they are proprietors of two pairs of pants, and the little girls they marry are old women before they are twenty years old. It is time enough for these bantams to begin to think of finding a pullet when they have raised money enough by their own work to buy a bundle of lath to build a hen house. But they see a girl that looks cunning, and they are afraid there is not going to be enough to go around, and then they begin to get in their work real spry, and before they are aware of the sanctity of the marriage relation they are hitched for life, and before they own a cook-stove or a bedstead they have to get up in the night and go for a doctor, so frightened that they run themselves out of breath and abuse the doctor because he does not run too, and when the doctor gets there he finds that there is not linen enough in the house to wrap up a doll baby.

It is about this time that a young man begins to realise that he has been a colossal fool, and as he flies around to heat water, and bring in the bath tub, and goes whooping after his mother or her mother, he turns pale around the gills, his hair turns red in a single night, and he calls high heaven to witness that if he lives till morning, which he has doubts about, he will turn over a new leaf and never get married again till he is older. And in the morning the green looking "father" is around before the drug store is open, with no collar on, his hair sticking every way, his eyes bloodshot and his frame nervous, waiting for the clerk to open the door so he can get some saffron to make tea of. Less than a year ago he thought he was the greatest man that there was anywhere; but as he sits there in the house that morning, with his wedding coat rusty and shiny and his pants frayed at the bottom and patched at the elbow, and the nurse puts in his arms a little roll of flannel with a baby hid in it, he holds it as he would a banana; and as he looks at his girl wife on the bed, nearly dead from pain and exhaustion, and he thinks that their is not provision enough in the house to feed a canary, a lump comes into his throat and he says to himself that if he had it to do over again he would leave that little girl at home to grow up with her mother, and he would wait till he had six dollars to buy baby flannel.

VULGARITY.—We would guard the young against the use of every word that is not strictly proper. Use no profane expression; allude to no subject that will put to blush the most sensitive, you know not the tendency of habitually using indecent or profane language. It may never be obliterated from your heart. When you grow up will find at your tongue's end some expression which you would not use for any money. It was used when you were young, however. By observing caution you will save yourself much mortification and regret. Good men have been taken sick and become delirious. In these moments they use the most vile and indecent language imaginable. When informed of it, after their restoration to health, they have no idea of the pain they had caused. They had repeated these expressions in childhood, and though years had passed since, they had been indelibly stamped on the heart.

Think of this, you who are tempted to use improper language, and never disgrace yourselves or your friends.

A Retrospect.

A hundred Octobers ago Philadelphia was the capital of the United States. The Congress sat in Independence Hall. The Ministers of France and Spain had their official stations under the sound of the liberty bell. It was a time of hope, a time of fear, a time of dread, a time of despair. The decisive duel of the long, weary war, was joined at Yorktown. The David of liberty was confronting the Goliah of tyranny. Even victory, it was felt with sickening dread, must be paid for by the most precious life blood of the thirteen Commonwealths. The slow couriers from Virginia, as they arrived, travel-stained, at the doors of Congress, were beset with hungry and terror-stricken citizens. Had there been a battle? Was it well with Washington and his soldiers? Had the Briton regained his insolent dominion of the sea? There were no telegraphs or bulletin boards or 'extras' to apprise the city, sick with dread and expectancy, of the march of events. Four weary weeks, and only meagre hints of vast purposes, of great combats at sea and the dispersal of the British fleets, of the ravages of the traitor Arnold in Connecticut, of the junction of the French fleets and American troops!

It was midnight on Monday, the 24th of October, 1781, when a horseman, travel-stained and worn, rung up the President of the Congress and gave him Washington's report of the surrender of Yorktown. In a few minutes the night guard, who had heard the news, electrified the quiet midnight street with this droll refrain: 'Bast dree o'clock und Gorn—vallis—ist—daken!' The rider who had flown from Yorktown was Colonel Tilgeman, of Washington's staff. Next morning Congress met, read the wonderful news and adjourned to the Lutheran Church to make thanksgiving. The city was hung in the bravery of patriotic joy. —Philadelphia Tribune.

A Modest Request.

'Darling, wake up and stop snoring,' said a Detroit women to her husband.

'Eh? Whazza matter now?' he asked, as he half raised up in bed.

'Won't you please stop snoring? If you only knew how homesick it makes me I'm sure you would.'

'Homesick! How the deuce can my innocent snore make you homesick?'

'Why, you know, darling, that the home on the coast from which you took me a joyous bride, was only half a mile from the government fog-horn, and every time you snore it reminds me so of home that I just can't stand it. Please lay on your side and have some little respect for my feelings.'

And then the brute spread himself out on his back, and in five minutes had her bathed in tears as visions of the old home crept upon her.

LONDON is said to be full of Americans. They fill the restaurants. You meet them sauntering in Piccadilly, half deserted, the gentlemen in wideawake hats and the women in green dust veils. They gaze around them with a mildly patronizing air, as much as to say, 'Well, we don't mind seeing all this. But you must not suppose we think it equal to New York.' Nor is it in the matter of restaurants and various other appliances of civilization.

The champion idiot in the Cabinet making business puts three New York men in, and, with this and one or two other absurdities to mar its beauty, fools an esteemed contemporary with it. When the President takes a hand there will be an accumulation of half-worked Cabinet stuff left in many shops.

The Major and the Muleteer.

Major Sanger, who is known in military slang as a 'bantam,' was returning one day recently from Bismarck to Fort Lincoln, which is across the river, and the ambulance in which he was riding was delayed by a team and wagon driven by one of the class known as mule-whackers in this country. The driver of the ambulance and the mule whacker got into a wordy altercation, and Major Sanger got very indignant at what he believed to be impertinent language and unwarranted interference in his journey. He jumped from the ambulance, a Tom Thumb in size but a Goliah in fury, and exclaimed:

'Get that wagon out of the way.'

The mule whacker looked at him quizzically and asked:

'Who the devil are you?'

'I am Major Sanger, of the army, sir, and I want you to get that wagon out of the way.'

The mule-whacker ejected a mouthful of tobacco into the road and remarked:

'Do you know what I will do with you, Major Sanger, of the army, sir, if you don't make less noise with your mouth?'

'What will you do?' inquired the Major, looking as large and fierce as possible.

'I'll set a mouse-trap and catch you Major Sanger, of the army, sir, and give you to my puppy to play with.'—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

An Æsthetic Wife.

'Say, I'll tell you something if you won't blow it,' was the way one man saluted another on Twelfth street yesterday.

'All right—go ahead.'

'You won't give it way until I say so?'

'Not a word.'

'Well my wife has got to be an æsthetic.'

'No?'

'Sure's you're born I have suspected that she was working that way for some time past, but it's only within a day or two that I became positive.'

'Well, that's wonderful. Say, how does she act?'

'Languid—very languid. She lops around, drawls her words, writes sad poetry, and the sight of an old pie-tin or a banged-up chromo entrances her. Congratulate me on my luck.'

'I do—I do. That is—'

'What?'

'Don't build hopes too fast. Be sure you are right, and then go ahead. I labored for a whole year under the delusion that my wife was developing as an æsthetic, and and when I came to talk with her father he said she was always more than half idiot by nature. Go slow—go slow. The difference between an æsthetic and a fool is so mighty small that you can't afford to make a mistake and be placed in a box.'

Do it Now.

Do not live a single hour of poor life without doing exactly what is to be done in it, from beginning to end. Work, play, study, whatever it is—take hold at once and finish it up squarely and cleanly; then to the next thing, without letting any moments drop between. It is wonderful to see how many hours these prompt people contrive to make of a day: it is as if they picked up the moments that the dawdlers lost. And if ever you find yourself where you have so many things pressing upon you, that you hardly know how to begin, let me tell you a secret, take hold of the very first one that comes to hand and you will find all the rest fall in file, and follow after like a company of well-drilled soldiers; and though work may be hard to meet when it charges in a squad, it is easily vanquished if you can bring it into line. You may have often seen the anecdote of the man who was asking how he had accomplished so much in his life. 'My father tought me,' was the reply, 'when I had anything to do, to go and do it.' There is the secret—the magic word, now.

Love Making in Chicago.

'I am very rich, my darling,' she said softly, punctuating her sentences with soft, warm kisses. 'Already I have $100,000 worth of four-percents registered in my name, and when the leaves are turning red in the golden October days, and the fields are laughing in the rich abundance of a bountiful harvest, I shall cut off the coupons. And when papa dies he will leave me nearly $200,000 more. Yes, my sweetheart, I am a very happy girl,' and a fair young head nestled confidingly on the shoulder of the strong-limbed hazel-eyed young man to whom this avowal was made. He looked tenderly down at the brown tresses and the invisible net that bound them to the fair forehead. Gently lifting the beautiful face to his, he pressed a passionate kiss on the full red lips that seemed only made for osculation.

Turning his head away, Herbert Ainsleigh appeared for a moment to be wrapped in thought. Then kissing Miriam with a a rich, warm, two-for-a-quarter kiss, he said:

'Do you love me, Birdie?'

She gave answer by placing her white arms about his neck and throwing herself madly on his shirt front.

'Do not hug so hard, darling, an' you love me, or my collar-stud will raise a carbuncle on the back of my neck,' he said, in low, mellow tones.

"It is only the deep passionate longing of my love, Herbert. It recks not of carbuncles. But you are right. Too much pressure on the cervical vertebra will cause an exostosis. My professor of anatomy told me that."

"And we will be married in the fall, my sweet?"

"Yes, Herbert, in the rich, hazy, sensuous days of Indian summer, when the low note of the farmer's boy, seeking the lost cow, is heard as he sits on the vine-embowered stile and blasphemes until the firefly leaves for a cooler spot. You must take all my money, Herbert; it must be yours to do as you will with it; to attain the glorious fame that awaits you; for I know that my love's name will some day be known through the length and breadth of the land. Surely, you have an ambition?"

"I have," said Herbert, kissing her while she caught her breath.

"And you will not let any false pride stand in the way of using my money to attain the height you fain would reach?"

"No, darling, I will not. You say you have $100,000 in 4 per cents. It is enough. To-morrow I will act, and in less than a day my name will be as familiar throughout the world as that of England's proud Queen."

"Oh Herbert, what will you do?"

"I shall purchase Maud S.

Two minutes later a human form fell with a heavy thud on the front porch of the haughty porkpacker's residence. It was Herbert Ainsleigh. The old man had fired him out.

A Ghastly Wedding.

A very extraordinary and somewhat repulsive marriage ceremony took place not long ago at Portsmouth, Eng., concerning which the English papers are having a good deal to say. It seems that Miss Mainwaring, the daughter of an army officer, was about to be married, and, after her wedding trousseau had been prepared and all arrangements made for the ceremony, she was suddenly taken quite sick, and in the course of a few days died. Heretofore it had been considered that the death of one of the parties to a proposed wedding effectually put an end to the matter, but the family of Miss Mainwaring and the gentleman to whom she was engaged evidently did not view the matter in that light, since they "decided to go through with the marriage ceremony as far as possible before interment," as an English paper puts it. In order to do this the coffin containing the body of the young lady was taken to the church, the friends of the deceased accompanying it in wedding costume, and a wreath of orange blossoms being placed on the of the dead girl. Several clergymen were present, and after the marriage service had been read and the proper responses had been made by the groom, that for funerals was preceeded with. The company then proceeded to Portsmouth Cemetery where the interment took place. Anything more ghastly than this can scarcely be imagined, and it is to be hoped that the fashion of marrying a living person to a dead one will not become general.

A great many Democrat journals affect to believe that the campaign has been ended before it begun. They thought so last year, but it didn't end as they imagined it would.

Farm and Iron Ore Mine
AT ORPHANS COURT SALE

WILL be exposed at public sale on the premises, by order of the Orphans' Court of Centre county, Pa., on Wednesday, Nov. 16th, 1881,

All that messuage or tract of land known as the

JAS. A. McCALMONT FARM

Located in Marion township, Centre county, Pa., about a mile west of Jacksonville and eight miles east of Bellefonte, a first class Nittany Valley Farm, bounded by lands of W. W. Beck, Joseph Long, heirs of John Beatty, and heirs of Thomas Huston, deceased, containing about 193 acres, net measure. 150 acres are cleared and in a high state of cultivation, and the balance of the land is covered with thriving timber.
A good Mansion House, two tenement houses, frame barn, with other outbuildings; wells and cisterns convenient.
This farm contains the celebrated Iron Ore Bank known as the McCalmont Ore, which is of the best quality, analyzing 56 per cent. carbonate of iron, and extensive in quantity, in addition to which there are indications of ore of same quality in the fields adjoining, which can be washed from the earth in large quantities. Water 90 feet below the surface.
This farm is located in a good neighborhood, convenient to churches, schools, mills, and within three miles of Howard station on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, to which the road descends all the way.
Persons wishing to view this property before the day of sale are invited to call on James S. and Robert McCalmont, who reside on the premises.
Sale at 1 o'clock P. M. of said day.
TERMS.—One-third of purchase money to be paid on confirmation of sale, one-third in one year, the balance in two years thereafter; the two latter payments to be secured by bonds and mortgage on the premises, with interest.

Valuable Farm for Sale.
THE EXECUTORS OF THE ESTATE OF FELIX DALE, deceased, offer at private sale a Farm situate at Houserville, in College Twp,
seven miles southwest from Bellefonte, containing 162 Acres, more or less, of the very best limestone land, about 30 acres of which remain covered with good timber, mostly of white oak.
The improvements are a two-story Dwelling House, roomy and commodious with cellar and vault, basement kitchen and pantry; well and cistern near the door; oven-house, smoke-house and tool-house; a large Bank Barn, with horse-power shed attached; carriage house, corn crib, and other necessary buildings.
Besides an Orchard of choice apples, there are cherries, peaches, grapes, and other fruits in their season.
Spring Creek runs through the place.
IRON ORE.
From surface indications and tests made, it is believed that a valuable deposit of the best iron ore underlies the western part of the farm, needing only to be developed to enrich the owner.
Pleasantly located, with a soil of great fertility, and possessing the advantages of town and country in its proximity to churches, schools, mills, stores and markets, this property will commend itself to any one who is either looking for a desirable and comfortable home or wanting to make a good investment of capital.
HOUSE AND LOT.
An adjoining half-acre lot with a house thereon, will be sold either with the farm, or separately, to suit purchasers.
For terms and particulars apply to

VARIOUS CAUSES—
Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous.
For sale by all dealers. 12-40-1y 2

New Advertisements.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight-inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

ELY'S CREAM BALM
Having gained an enviable local reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of discovery, is, on its merits alone, recognized as a wonderful remedy wherever known. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions, allays inflammation and irritation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores the senses of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized after a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The Balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package. Send for circular with full information.

MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM OF LYNN, MASS.

DISCOVERER OF
LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.
The Positive Cure
For all Female Complaints.
This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.
It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, Irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.
In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach.
It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.
For Kidney Complaints of either sex this compound is unsurpassed.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. FOR STATE TREASURER,

SILAS M. BAILY.

A man who from his youth up has fought the battles of Republicanism in a region where no hope of success could add vigor and zeal to the contest, and with no reward save the consciousness of having served the cause he loved.

A man who has attested his love of liberty and law by services on the field of glory and of blood, who won his promotion in the glorious Pennsylvania Reserves, from Captain to Brigadier, by meritorious service on the field.

A man who stood in the red hell of battle at Drainesville, on the Peninsula, at Gaines's Mill, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg and the Wilderness, and who bore witness with his blood that he loved his country well.

He bears upon his person the rough scars left by the cruel cannon ball, and will carry to his grave the evidence of his patriotism and courage.

He is able and worthy to lead Republicans to victory, as he led his regiment to war.—Speech of Attorney General Palmer in the Republican State Convention.

BELLEFONTE, Pa Oct. 7th, 1881.

We do hereby certify that we have carefully examined the accounts of John I. Rankin, as Chairman of the Republican Committee for the year 1880. And we find, upon said examination, that his actual cash payments, made on behalf of said committee, are in excess of the money he received as chairman.

THE LATEST NEWS.

War on the Nihilists.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says:—"Twenty pupils of the Constantine Military School have been arrested. Many Nihilist proclamations were found on them. The Russian authorities, in view of this fact, are adopting the severest measures. Markets and fairs are prohibited wherever there is the least suspicion that the nihilists intend to use such gatherings for their own purposes." The Russian official Journal de St. Petersburg, commenting on the relative to an international convention for the extradition of political criminals, says:—"The Russian government has no intention of exercising a pressure in any quarter. It regards to the actions of such criminals against society as threatening all States alike, and therefore thinks that defensive measures against the scourage should be collective. Russia has invited all the other governments interested to come to arrangement. As a matter of course each Power is at liberty to act as the special circumstances of its legislative institutions require. From a moral point of view, however, the maintenance of social order is a matter that concerns all civilized States."

Wolf's Campaign.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 8.—The Wolf meeting to-night failed to come up to the expectations of the gentleman's friends, and it was a very respectable gathering, both as to numbers and the character of the audience. It was a mixed assemblage of Democrats and Republicans drawn together by curiosity to hear what the erratic statesman of Union county had to say. He was accorded a very respectful hearing, and undoubetedly made many friends among our citizens. There is no doubt but that in Lawrence county Mr. Wolf may number his friends by the hundreds; men who respect him and believe in his sincerity, and who would be glad of the opportunity to testify to their feelings for him if they could have an opportunity to vote for him as a Republican, but they will not vote for him solely for the purpose of defeating General Baily and electing a Democrat. General Baily has a host of friends here, veterans who served with him in the war and civilians who got acquainted with him at the reunions and who admire his soldier record and respect him for his integrity of character and pure life. The fact that Mr. Wolf and his friends are unable to point a single defect in Gen. Baily's character, unfitting him for the office he is running for, weakens their independent canvass very much. The soldier element here is a unit for Bailey. Wolf will poll as many Democratic as Republican votes in this county.

General Garfield's Body.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 7.—Late last evening a closed carriage passed the guards around Lake View Cemetry and drew up in the darknes at the vault containing the remains of the late President Garfield. An air of mystery surrounded the movement, but subsequently the errand of the visitors were ascertained. The carriage contained Dr. Boynton, Internal Revenue collector W. S. Streaton and Mayor Herrick, besides two undertakers. They brought with them an elegant bronze coffin sent here secretely by the Masonic burial case company of New York city. The coffin in which the body reposed was soon opened, disclosing the unrecognizable features of the dead President. The general condition of the body was found to be about the same as when it was last exposed to view in Washington.

Within an hour the body had been transferred to the new coffin, which is an imperishable one, and, locking the vault, the party drove secretly back to the city. For some reason the fact of the comtemplated change was kept from the press. Mrs. Garfield came to this city from Mentor yesterday and inspected the new coffin.

Fatally Wounded.

QUINCY, Ill., Oct. 10.—A shooting affray took place in this city this afternoon, which will probably result in the death of John McDade, exchief of police, and a gambler named Jackson. McCade was standing in a doorway opposite Jackson's gambling rooms, when Jackson, accompained by two other gamblers, crossed the street. McDade then fired both barrels of his gun into Jackson's neck and shoulders, fatally wounding him. Jackson thereupon shot McDade through the breast with a revolver. The cause of the assault is not known.

Escape of Murderers.

CAIRO, Ill., Oct. 9.—Appleton Atkinson, sixty-eight years old, and his son, James C. Atkinson, aged twenty-eight, both sentenced to be hanged on October 28 for the murder of the wife and child of the latter, escaped from the jail at Gayoso, Mo., last night. They are provided with Winchester rifles, but nearly the whole male portion of the residents of Pemiscot county is in pursuit of them. They made their escape by tunneling beneath the jail.

A Catholic College Burned.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—The Roman Catholic College of St. Therese, the most extensive building of the kind in the province, situated in the village of the same name, twenty-five miles southwest of this city, was burned yesterday afternoon. The origin of the fire is yet unknown. Three hundred pupils and over twenty professors were in the building. All escaped. Loss, $300,000 to $400,000, and is all covered by insurance.

Representative Law of Philadelphia, Drowned.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—Edward Law, Representative from the Eighth ward of this city in the State Legislature, was rowing in a shell yesterday afternoon on the Schuylkill river near Girard and Bridgewater. The shell upset and he was drowned. His body was recovered.

Efforts to Avoid a Contest in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—At an informal conference of the Democratic Senators here to-night the general situation was talked over. The more sagacious were favorable to a compromise and intimated that they would urge that course on their colleagues in the caucus to-morrow.

Senator Morrill, of Vermont, said to-night that he believed that it was impossible to say what the Democrats would do, but judging from his interviews with them they were not inclined to raise superserviceable opposition to prompt organization. It is conceded that the Democrats will make their demands on the Secretaryship and minor offices in consideration of the Republicans securing the President pro tem. But as Senator Allison remarked to-night, the Democrats are rather unsertain and he will have no opinions until after they have put themselves on record. The Republican Senators in their caucus propose simply to exchange views in order to be ready for an emergency. The embarrassment consequent upon Conkling and Platt's resignation and Burnside's death puts the Republican Senators in no condition for a contest at the ou'set, a position which they fully realize.

Senator Randall stated to your correspondent to-night that the course of the Democrats would depend entirely upon the action of the President; that as for himself the whole business of the executive session in organization could be fixed up in four days, and if it went beyond that it was impossible to say what would take place. The Democrats are bent on takiag all the advantage tney can out of the vantage ground they now possess, and will insist upon a certain share in the patronage of the Government or put themselves in antigonism to a peaceful solution of pending complications.

The Garfield Monument.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—A letter was sent to-day to the Governors of all the States and Territories by the committee having in charge the movement to secure money for the erection of a monument over the grave of the late President Garfield, at Lake View Cemetery, asking the co-operation and assistance of the people of the different States and Territories. The letter concludes as follows:

We, therefore, respectfully request, and hereby authorize, you to act as general manager of this movement in the State of—, with full power to associate such other persons as you may consider best, and with them to organize the work throughout your State as you may deem most advisable. We earnestly urge upon you to accept this appointment, and to signify your acceptance at an early day. The committee has a beautiful lithograph certificate prepared, which will be sent to all who contribute one or more dollars. We enclose specimens. Larger subscriptions than one dollar will be needed, and thankfully accepted. The dollar subscription is only intended to popularize the movement.

Respectfully yours,
J. H. WADE,
H. B. PAYNE,
JOSEPH PERKINS,
Committee.

Canadian Items.

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—A special cable dispatch from London to The Toronto Globe says: 'Lord Lorne's trip has excited great interest amongst the Scottish farmers, who have read of it in letters sent by the correspondent of The Scotsman, who is one of the Governor-General's party.' The Times says: 'The Scotsman's letters do much to convince people here that the grand country Canadians are opening up is a promising field for occupation by people who are still proud to call themselves British subjects.'

QUEBEC, Oct. 10.—Alex. Woods has taken an action in the Superior Court to recover from A. H. Murphy member of the Provincial Parliament, the sum of $160,000, the alleged penalty for sitting in the Legislative Assembly without the qualifications required by law.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—Hayvern, who killed Salter in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, where his trial has been going on for the past three days, has been found guilty and sentenced to be hanged December 9.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 10.—Recently 100 barrels of American coal oil arrived here for a city merchant. As it failed to stand the required test, the authorities prevented its importation.

Late Cotton in Great Peril.

CHARLESTON, S. C. Oct. 7.—Telegrams from northern South Carolina to the News and Courier this morning report a frost last night and another is expected to-night, and state that the late growth of cotton will be destroyed.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

THE VETERANS.

General Beaver's Address at the Reunion in Mifflin.

A correspondent writing to the Harrisburg Telegraph from Mifflin has this to say of General Beaver's address on that occasion:

Gen. James A. Beaver, of Bellefonte, the orator of the day, was now introduced and was warmly received. He had had many Juniata boys under his command, and many of those met him to-day for the first time since the war. Gen. Beaver left one leg at Reem's Station, Va., is in the prime of life, and spoke with the warmth and feeling that old comrades alone can manifest. His opening remarks were those of fraternal greeting from another veteran association whose reunion he had recently attended.

The General's theme was the memories of the war worth preserving, and the pleasures and benefits of renewing these memories—not the memories of bitter sectional strife, but those of another and better character. We should love the social features of the war, the indissoluble ties of friendship and affection formed amid common dangers and sufferings. We should love to remember that we have a more staple Government now than we had—more staple than any other the sun ever shone upon. It is worth while, too, to remember that we have a purer Government—just as the atmosphere becomes purer after a storm.

I like, too, to remember, said the General, that there were two sides during the rebellion. When the Carlisle Post, G. A. R., visited Luray Cave, in Virginia, some 3,000 citizens of that State met them. They formed on one side and the Post members on the other, and then advanced and heartily shook hands. A splendid banquet, prepared by these Virginians for our Grand Army boys followed. Afterwards an invitation was extended by this Post and some 300 ex-Confederates visited Carlisle, each wearing a white badge bearing the flag of our common country, with clasped hands beneath it, and the motto: "Ex-C."

The General argued eloquently we ought to extend the right hand of fellowship to those ex-confederates, whom we whipped and ought to have whipped. We can afford to do it, and if Christianity is true, it is our duty to take them back to share the blessings of our Government, and his utterances were loudly applauded.

The Mystery Explained at Last.

A charter was granted at Harrisburg on Saturday of last week which explained the mysterious movements of several corps of civil engineers who have been puzzling the farmers of certain parts of this county during the past summer. The charter is for the Seaboard, Pittsburg and Great Western Railroad Company, and empowers them to build a road from a point on the Baltimore and Cumberland Valley Railroad near Greenville, Franklin coumty, to a point on the Ohio river in the northwest corner of Stowe township, Allegheny county. The route proposed is 210 miles long, and runs through the counties of Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Indiana, Westmoreland and Allegheny, and as the engineers have seen fit to leave out Centre county we suppose our people needn't give themselves any concern regarding the nuisance of a railroad, at least for the present. The capital stock is $2,100,000, divided into 42,000 shares, of which Edward L. McConaughy, of Philadelphia, is credited with all but 40. Thomas E. Shoemaker, of Philadelphia, is President, and all the directors are from the same city. The enterprise is entirely an eastern one so far as ownership and management are concerned.

Memorial Services.

HEADQUARTERS
GREGG POST, No. 95., G. A. R.,
BELLEFONTE, October 8, 1881.

A Memorial service in honor of our deceased Comrade, K. Randolph Breese, late Captain U. S. Navy, will be held in the Court House, Bellefonte, on Saturday, Oct. 15th, 1881, at half past seven p. m., to which the public are invited.

The music will be under the charge of Comrade E. M. Blanchard.

Comrade Jno. B. Linn will make the address.

Comrades will report at Post room in uniform, with white gloves, at seven o'clock p. m., precisely.

By order
GEO. F. HARRIS,
Post Commander.
H. H. BENNER, Adjutant.

—The following teachers have been selected to conduct the several schools of Huston township, which begin on Monday next: Silverdale, Miss Josie Richards; Sugar Grove, Miss Maggie Brown; Bellview, William Weston; Julian Furnace, J. A. Ward; Black Oak, Ralph Williams.

—County Superintendent Wolf has requested us to announce that a special examination of teachers will take place at his office, in this place, on Tuesday next, the 18th instant, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon. Parties interested will please take notice, and be on hand in time.

—Valentines' forge suspended operations yesterday for the purpose of making repairs to the engine.

—Smoke Harry Green's cigars.

—Buy your groceries of Sechler.

—Owing to the rain on Sunday the churches were very poorly attended.

—A freight wreck at Beech Creek detained express west several hours Thursday morning.

—The festival of our colored friends in McClain's block on Thursday night was well attended.

—Farmers find Sechler the best and fairest man in town to deal with when they have anything to sell.

—A Reading man named Badd recently drew $5,000 in the Louisiana State lottery. Good for Badd.

—A slight accident occurred on Allegheny street Thursday morning between two farm wagons, but very little damage resulted.

—Don't fail to visit Sechler's mammoth grocery establishment when you are in need of anythingin the provision line.

—Harry Green's cigars are universally pronounced the best in town. Smokers who use them once never fail to use them afterwards.

—A small piece of common lime, dissolved in water and applied to the affected part, is said to be an excellent antidote for poison by ivy, either by handling or exposure.

—The bowling alley in the basement of the Bush House was thrown open to the public on Saturday night, and until a late hour the rumbling of the heavy balls could be heard.

—The hop on Thursday night in the Arcade was a success financially and otherwise. The music was of an excellent character, and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves well.

—A building belonging to J. F. Steiner, at Philipsburg, was last week destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $5,000, on which there was an insurance of $1,000. The cause of the fire is not known.

KAHOKA, Mo., Oct. 10, 1881.

I purchased five bottles of your Hop Bitters of Bishop & Co. last fall, for my daughter, and am well pleased with the Bitters. They did her more good than all the medicine she has taken for six years.

—George Evans, of Clearfield county, who killed two men, was sentenced last week to twenty years in the penitentiary, eight for the murder of the Swede, in which case he was convicted of manslaughter, and twelve years for the murder of Goodman, having been convicted of murder in the second degree.

—A very disgraceful sight was the quarreling between two brothers, both intoxicated, Saturday afternoon on the High street bridge. The most profane and abusive language was used by one towards the other, and continued for some time, until Constable Isaac Lose threatened to lock up the one with the ill tongue, when they were parted.

—The firm of Alexander & Co. had on exhibition at the county fair a larger and more varied assortment of agricultural implements of all kinds than any other single party in the county, and without which the fair would have lost very much of its attractiveness. In our report of yesterday we failed to give them just credit for their part in this matter, but we now willingly make the amende honorable.

—The Hollidaysburg correspondent to the Altoona Sun speaks as follows of the marriage of a Centre county boy to a young lady residing near that place: Yesterday Mr. Bruce Lingle was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Zillah Knox, one of Newry's fairest and most accomplished young ladies. The bridegroom is from Lemont, Centre county, and the bride is a daughter of Alexander Knox, Esq., one of Blair county's oldest citizens. The happy couple have the best wishes of their many friends.

—Young man lay up something. You will need it when you're old and laid up. Some folks never lay up anything unless it is a grudge; but grudges, no matter how choice and varied an assortment you may have collected, will hardly keep a man alive. Lay up something for a rainy day, even if you have to borrow the umbrella. Lay up for old age, and if you lay up for repairs occasionally, as ships do, old age won't come on so rapidly as it otherwise would. One of the most regretful realities of life is the fact that everybody grows older with each succeeding day, and how comparatively few ever think of a "rainy day," let alone make an effort to prepare for it. One of the first requisites of life is to look after the physical welfare, and no better nor more effective way can be imagined than the selection of unadulterated, fresh edibles, such as only Sechler furnishes. Indeed, dealing with him will not only benefit the physical being but serves salutarily to the mind and improves the pocket-book besides We ask you to try it.

The Women's Missionary Society.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society met at the residence of Mrs. Edward Humes, on Allegheny street, last Friday night, the Loring Band and Crittenden Cadets being present. The meeting was largely attended and very interesting. Mrs. Butler, who with her husband has lately returned from Ning Po, China, gave a very interesting account of her field of labor, told of the number of schools they had established and gave a very good idea of the old heathen modes of worship. She made her talk very instructive by introducing pictures representing heathen Gods, but they must be seen to be appreciated. She also exhibited two suits of clothes such as are worn in that country. They are made of Canton crape, beautifully embroidered, and were much admired by all present.

Rev. Butler came in after the business part of the meeting was over, and with his wife sang "There is a fountain filled with blood" and the Doxology in the Chinese language, while Miss Orbison accompanied them on the piano.

The meeting adjourned at a reasonable hour, and everybody expressed themselves as having an excellent time.

Life of Gen. Garfield.

Frank Dale, Esq., has the agency for this county to sell The Life of Gen. James A. Garfield, including the history of his assassination. The book is edited by James D. McCabe and pulished by the National Publishing Co., Philadelphia. The work is beautifully embellished with cuts of President Garfield, his family, the members of his Cabinet, the battles he was in, scenes just after his nomination at Chicago, sick-bed and death-bed scenes. It is a work that should be in every family in the county. It is current history. It is the record of the life and sufferings of our martyred President—full of interest, beautifully written, typographically perfect and in style of binding as rich and cheap as the purchaser may desire. There is no doubt that Mr. Dale will have a large sale of these books, and we hope he will reap a fair reward.

Hublersburg Dots.

A few days since Micheal Hubler had the misfortune of falling from the "overhead" in his barn, thereby fracturing several ribs, but now he is able to be about again.

Willie Whippo, a small son of Levi Whippo, recently broke his left arm by only a slight fall.

David Emerick, of Stephenson county, Illinois is here visiting among kindred and friends. Mr. E. left this place in 1857, and notices many changes. Miss Tilly Bean, of Wadams Grove, Ill., is also visiting among relatives here.

Henry Beck, of Snydertown, has erected a handsome mansion nearly opposite his present residence. Dr. Willower, father-in-law of your townsman Dr. Hibler, and David Harshbarger each have about finished neat dwellings.

The following corps of teachers are trying to "slap learning into the refractory pupils" of Walker: Franklin grammar, Elery Mourer; Franklin primary, E. C. Emerick; Snyders, Ed. Warner; Hublersburg grammar, Moses Romick; Hublersburg primary, W. H. Markle; Central, Willlam Decker; Logan, David A. Dietrick; Forest, Miss Marv Kline, and Zion, J. L. Shaffer.

The Evangelical denomination are at present conducting a revival at Hecla, and with very liberal success.

EVAN.

—A number of youths of this place who make a habit of lounging about pool and billiard rooms at night would be far better off at home in bed. Parents seem to manifest criminal indifference or carelessness for their children's welfare, but they may have cause for regret after awhile.

—We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary from Rev. Father McArdle to attend the fair and festival now being held by his church on Bishop street, and for which we return our warmest thanks for his generous kindness.

—Mr. D. Irwin, one of Martha's enterprising merchants, shows evidence of prosperity in the construction of a handsome and commodious store building, which he now occupies, situated near the depot in that place.

—The Rev. Edward B. Morris will preach every night this week, excepting Saturday, in the hall of the Baptist association in the Arcade building. Everybody is invited to attend these meetings.

—The Jonior Order of American Mechanics cleared about $30 by the ball given last Thursday for the purpose of furnishing their new quarters in McClain's block.

—Call and see our giant hip corset warranted not to break over the hips.

Calling in Vain for Bondsmen.

The Rev. John A. Lansing, who was arrested on Friday in Brookline, Mass., on a charge of swindling Mrs. Upham, the widow of Professor Thomas C. Upham, of Bowdoin College, was taken to the District Attorney's office yesterday to give bail. He offered as his bondsman a property-owner in the State of New Jersey, but as under the new code the bondsman must own real estate in New York the bondsman was not accepted. He sent messages to several persons whom he seemed to know, but none of them responded. Finally Judge Cowing committed the Rev. Mr. Lansing to the Tombs in default of bail. A dispatch from Ocean Grove, N. J., says:

There is no little excitement here over the arrest of Miss Mary C. Ward and the Rev. John A. Lansing, on the charge of swindling the widow of the late Professor Upham out of $14,000. Lansing is a Baptist, not a Methodist. Dr. Ward, the father of Lansing's confederate, was the leader of the Holiness meetings here, and his two daughters and Lansing took an active part in the meetings. The two women became almost crazy from religion, and one day, at the public services, claimed to have the right to 'administer the Holy Ghost' by the laying on of their hands. The Ocean Grove Association held a special meeting and the Wards and their friends were compelled to cease their work. They have not been here since.

Serenading a Corpse.

Not long since a couple were married at North Orange, Mass. The bride's home was at Royalston, nine miles distant; but she had many friends in North Orange, and the brass band took a barge and went out upon the evening of the wedding-day to serenade the happy pair.

It was not late when they arrived at the home in Royalston, but darkness shrouded the house, and seeing a cottage brightly lighted a little further on, they concluded it must be the place they were in search of; so they approached noiselessly, in order to surprise the happy pair, and having formed in front of the house, struck up one of their most gay and festive airs.

At the close a gentleman appeared at the door and asked for the leader.

Visions of ice-cream, pies and cake began to rise before them; but instead there was a break for the barge when the leader rushed back and exclaimed, in a stage whisper: "Good thunder, boys! Get out of this, quick! We are serenading a corpse!"

WHY the Canadians or any one else should object to Captain Hooper's harmless but unprofitable exploit in hoisting the American flag on Warngell's Island passes comprehension. But if any susceptiblities have been wounded by his proceeding; we are willing to surrender any territorial pretensions in that direction which we may be suspected of entertaining, and that with the utmost cheerfulness. We should be sorry to get into any wrangle over a place which has such little value and so few attractions. When we learn what to do with Alaska, and have done it, it will be time enough to think of extending our dominion northward.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

President Arthur's Movements.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—President Arthur was so absorbed in finishing his private business that he did not drive out, as he had intended, but confined himself to his study, in order that all preparations for his departure might be completed to-night. To morrow afternoon he will take the train for Washington, so that all speculations as to his connection with the State Convention will be settled. The President to-morrow will proceed directly from his residence to the Desbrosses street ferry, and will take the Pennsylvania Railroad at Jersey City. He will be escorted to the depot by Police Commissioner French only, as he is desirous to leave as quietly as possible. It is not likely he will return to the city after the extra session of the Senate, but will remain at the White House. Attorney General MacVeagh, it is stated, would leave for Washington within a day or two, as Secretary Kirkwood is the only member of the Cabinet in Washington.

It is understood to-night that President Arthur has not yet wound up his legal business, but will pay a visit again to the city at an early day.

Relative of the rumor of an understanding between the President and ex-Senator Conkling in regard to the State Convention, by which the latter should arrive in this city after the departure of the President, it was stated, the Telegram says, in the most positive terms this afternoon, by one of the President's confidential advisers, that Conkling will not come to the city during the convention, but has postponed his visit till next week, when he will have some profesional matters to attend to. This announcement was conveyed in a letter that reached the city this morning.

About forty delegates to the convention from remote sections arrived to-day. They annonnced that about one hundred more will reach here to-morrow forenoon. All the delegates, whether stalwarts or half-breeds, scouted the idea of a bolt from the convention in any event. They anticipated a harmonious gathering.

Collector Robertson stated to a reporter he was not at all uneasy about the result of the convention. 'Our people,' he remarked, 'have elected a majority of the delegates, and I cannot for a moment share in the apprehenson that there will be a resort of any sharp practice that would defeat the will of the people so clearly expressed, much less to oust such numbers as would place the control of the convention in the hands of men whom the people have declared they are unwilling to trust. Such a result would be a down-right farce, and would be promptly met by the righteous indignation of the Republican party throughout the State. All talk about the convention being ruled by a cabal in this city I pay no heed to. We have no cabals, in the offensive sense, in the Republican party. The convention may prove to be what you would term a spirited one, but will be a fair one.'

In answer to another question, the Collector said, 'We are not fighting the President or his administration; we are fighting the machine in this State.'

Guiteau, the Assassin.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—G. W. Scoville visited Guiteau this morning and remained with him two hours. He feared that his client was more nervous in regard to the results of the trial than yesterday and in a more humble mood. Yesterday he wanted to map out a plan of defense and was full of suggestions. To-day he was quite ready to submit. He has furnished Scoville with a minute list of the places where witnesses may be sought for, as to his acts and mental condition during the last ten years, and especially during the last three years. Guiteau was yesterday averse to the plea of insanity, saying that it would prove a weak one in his case. He was willing to-day to allow his brother-in-law to decide this point, and promised to obey implicitly his directions. Mr. Scoville relies much upon the testimony to be obtained in this district. There are many who came in contact with the assassin here, at the hotels and boarding houses, in the libraries and at the departments, between March 5 and July 2, who, he thinks, will, if called upon to swear, be obliged to say that they thought him a deranged man. Such opinions will be given reluctantly, but they will be all the more powerful as evidence.

The indictment of Guiteau was not sent up to the grand jury for indorsement this morning, and the District Attorney decided not to bring the prisoner into court for arraignment until to-morrow.

The War in Tunis.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—General Farre, Minister of War, has received telegrams confirming the report of the burning of a railway station at Wadzergha and the massacreing of a number of employes, including several British subjects, by the insurgents in Tunis. The attack on the station was made by the Arabs who recently attacted Ali Bey. The Station Master, an ex Lieutenant in the French army, and Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, was burned alive, and ten employees, mostly Maltese and Italians, were massacred. Roustan, the French Minister at Tunis, has invited the English and Italian counsuls to assist at the official inquiry into the disaster. The English and Italian consular clerks, doctors, etc., have accordingly gone to Wadzergha, for that purpose. Six hundred French troops went there on the 30th ult., but the Arabs had disappeared long before their arrival. The massacre was undoubtedly caused by the wholesale destruction of the olive forests, villages and vineyards, which General Sabatier considered necessary around Zaghouan.

The Tunisan authorities are evidently trying to screen the Arabs accused of murdering the Maltese and Italians. No arrests have yet been made.

The Tebessa column of the French troops have already entered the Regency and captured Getsa after a severe battle with the Djirid Arabs. Ali Bey has sent a messenger, stating that he is not able to hold out any longer, and demanding a French escort to effect his retreat. It is rumored that his condition is critical, a mutiny having broken out in his camp.

A correspondent says: It is clear that the Arabs have assembled in force in a portion which threatens the flank of the forces advancing from Mehmedia and Zaghouan on Kairwan.

A correspondent at Tunis says: I am convinced after diligent inquiry that unless the French occupy Tunis immediately an anti-Christian outbreak may occur at any moment. Roustan alone opposes its occupation because his holding up the threat of it affords him means of influencing the Bey.

Dispatches from Oran, Algeria, announces that the Emperor of Morocco is forming two columns of troops to operate against the rebels on the Algerian frontier, thus obviating the necessity of the French entering Morocco.

The Coming Crisis in Egypt.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 4.—The Sultan telegraphs the Khedive that the Imperial Commissioners, will not stay long in Egypt. The newspaper Egypte states the movements of the National party are assuming grave proportions. The natives of Alexandira are demanding the formation of a national guard for the defence of the coast.

It is announced that the Government of Italy has informed the Khedive of Egypt that the results of the inquiry into the massacre of the Italian expedition under Lieutenant Gieuletti, some months ago, are unsatisfactory.

The Journal de St. Petersburg, official organ, says: 'Russia is able for the present to remain simply a spectator of the competition aroused by the recent pronuncimento at Cairo; but the possession of Egypt is not an exclusively English or even Anglo-French question. It is too closely connected with the general eastern status in quo to allow any government to settle it on its own authority.'

Reports in regard to the position of Ali Bey are declared exaggeated. He has not been routed and has lost no guns. General Logerat has sent several battalions to enable him to resume the offensive. All the preparations for the advance on Kairwan are completed, and the measures decided upon will be in full execution by the 12th inst. A temporary railway will be laid from Susa to Kairwan.

The teacher may impart instruction, but he cannot furnish brains.

An Interesting Relic.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Benjamin Scott, Chamberlain of London, and author of several important antiquarian works, writes to the Times, suggesting a practical method of giving enduring proof of the English good will towards America, by an act which would exceedingly enrich the Americans. There is in the Bishop of London's library at Fulham monuscript in the handwriting of Governor Bradford, one of the lead-Pilgrim Fathers, who in 1620 landed at Plymouth Rock, Massachusetts, giving a diary of the proceedings of thd pilgrims, containing a compact or constitution out of which arose the federation now termed the United States. The document was captured as lost by a British soldier during the American war of Independence from the old Dutch church in Boston, Mass. As very many Americans consider the document as the very "Book of Genesis" of their nation, Mr. Scott has suggested that in token of the deep sympathy of England with America in her national sorrow, and England's desire to forget the confiict of a century ago, now attracting much attention at Yorktown, England should present the document in the name of the Queen and the nation to the United States.

Cable Chips.

A project is mooted among Americans at London to build a church in memory of President Garfield.

IN accordance with the decision of the iron masters to reduce the production of pig iron, only 105 furnaces are working in the Scottish iron works this week, 121 last week.

AN unsuccessful attempt was made in the Southern districts of London on Sunday to imitate the American crusasde against liquor selling, by prayer meetings held opposite public houses.

True Bill Against the Assassin.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—About one o'clock the grand jury took a recess, and the foreman, Mr. Churchman, proceeded to the office of the District Attorney and placed in Col. Corkhill's hands the presentment against Charles J. Guiteau for the murder of James A. Garfield, President of the United States, by wounding him with a bullet fired from a pistol in the hands of Charles J. Guiteau, at the Baltimore and Potomac depot, on or about the second day of July, 1881.

George Scoville, Guiteau's brother-in-law an', counsel, arrived and paid a visit to the prisoner at the jail and later had an interview with District Attorney Corkhill relative to the manner of proceeding with the trial. The District Attorney informed Mr. Scoville he intended to pursue the usual course in murder cases. Mr. Scoville intimated to night that he intended to rest Guiteau's case on the plea of insanity, and said at the proper time he would ask for the necessary delay to enable him to procure witnesses from a distance to establish this plea.

The President's Assassin.

The grand jury will doubtless find a true bill against Guiteau to-morrow. There is an absolute reticence in regard to the arraignment of the assassin in open court. As much as possible the public will be deceived as to the time, so that a disorderly crowd may be prevented from assembling on the road from the jail and in the court room. Guiteau becomes more and more demoralized each day. He is now reconciled to the fact that Mr. Scoville will be his only counsel. At first he scornfully rejected him as of too little reputation, but he appears very anxious now that he should come. He says he is willing to submit to any line of defense selected, although he scouts the idea that he is really insane.

Indian Fighting in Arkansas.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 4.—A Tucson dispatch says: A party of soldiers sent out to repair the telegraph line between Fts. Grant and Thomas was attacked by Chirricah Indians this afternoon and two soldiers killed. A courier just in from Cedar Spriugs says he saw the dead bodies of several citizens at that point. The command following the Chirricahuas are reported as fighting the Indians fifteen miles from Grant. The command consists of four companies of cavalry. The Indians are in the hills. Much excitement prevails here to night.

The ambulance is comparatively a modern invention, due mainly to the French. We find no trace of regularly organized military hospitals until the time of Henry IV.

Shot his Daughter.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 6.—Henry Bohrer, a painter, while returning home with his daughter last evening, became angered at a dog that ran out at him, and pulling out his revolver fired at he canine. Being intoxicated his hand was unsteady, and he missed the dog and shot his daughter in the groin, inflicting a painful, though not dangerous, flesh wound.

The case of small pox in the Third ward has been insolated and it is not believed the disease will spread. The pest house has been in order for the reception of patients should there be further cases.

A four-year old daughter of Mr. Henkel, of the Tod House, fell down a flight of stairs in the hotel last evening, alighting on her head. As she has been in an unconscious state ever since it is supposed that her brain has been injured and death will follow.

Frank Wilson, a brakeman on the P. & L. E. R. R., was robbed last night of a silver watch and $10 in money. The theft secured the swag by entering a coach in which Wilson was sleeping.

England's Vanishing Supremacy.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The passage in Sir Stafford Northcote's speech at Hull yesterday relative to free trade was as follows: 'There are those who think commercial superiority, as the Premier himself has said, will pass from England to America. I do not at least believe this will be in our time, if we make use of existing means to support our commercial interests. If we resort to false remedies we may do irreparable mischief. Do not believe in some of the suggestions put forward by friends of our own side, nor in the liberal suggestion that the state of agriculture is remediable by the radical change of land laws, although they are susceptible of amendment.'

In regard to the Irish land act he asked whether the Government did not mean to insist that the League must submit to the authority of Parliament and the executive and give the act fair play. The Government, he said, should exert the amount of courage necessary to put down the defiance of law.

A Farmer's Narrow Escape.

WORCHESTER, O., Oct. 4.—An accident happened at the Prarie Lane road crossing, on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, this morning, which came near costing a farmer named U. Robison his life. Just as the 8:55 east bound express was approaching the crossing Mr. Robison's team became frightened, and becoming unmanageable ran in front of the train, which struck the rear end of the wagon and completely demolished it. When Mr. Robison was fished out of the debris, he was found in an unconscious state and pretty badly bruised and cut, though strange to say no bones were broken. Under the treatment of Dr. Firestone he has recovered his consciousness and is doing nicely.

Guiteau's Case in New Jersey.

FREEHOLD, N. J. Oct. 5.—Justice Scudder, of the Supreme Court, in his address to the grand jury, referred to the case of Guiteau, and said: 'It will not be advisable or necessary for you to take any action in the matter at the present time, unless we shall be notified that the prosecution and indictment of the offense in this county are required to prevent the failure of justice, which does not now appear probable according to the statement made by the proper legal authority of Washington.'

Stopping Death Rattle Charters.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 5.—In the State Department lie a dozen applications for charters for Death Rattle Mutual Insurance Companies. The wonder is how so many could accumulate without the issuance of the charter. This is explained that Governor Hoyt, in view of the infamious revelations that have recently been made public regarding this class of companies, has given orders that no more charters be issued. It is even asserted that the charters already granted will be closely scanned for the purpose of finding any flaw that might lead to their revocation.

LADY BEAUTIFIERS.—Ladies you can not make fair skin, rosy cheeks, and sparkling eyes with all the cosmetics of France, or beautifiers of the world, while in poor health and nothing will give you such rich blood, good health, strength and beauty as Hop Bitters. A trial is certain proof.

New York Republicans.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—After the adjournment of the New York Republican Convention yesterday afternoon the different committees went into session and transacted their business. The convention reassembled at 8 in the evening. The committee on credentials reported in favor of throwing out all delegates favorable to Conkling, who, as contestants, had been placed on the roll by the State Committee. This included the delegation from Utica thatwas headed by Mr. Conkling. Mr. C., however, was not present, he having decided not to attend. Chauncy M. Depew, the Halfbreed candidate for Senator last summer, was elected permanent chairman without opposition. A long and acrimonious debate followed the introduction of a resolution as an amendment to the civil service plank of the platform, declaring that true civil service reform demanded that ex-Collector Meritt should be restored to the collectorship and allowed to serve out his expired term. The resolution was finaly smothered by being referred to the committee on resolutions. The sixth, seventh and eighth resolutions of the platform refer to State affairs. The first resolution was one of condolence on the death of General Garfield and an expression of confidence in his successor. The second applauds the financial management of the government by the Republicans whereby the annual interest charge has been reduced to $42,000,000. The third demands the prosecution of the conspirators against the Government and the fifth pledges the support of the party to the administration of President Arthur in its efforts to advance civil service reform.

The following ticket was then nominated, all being new men and half-breeds, except Gen. Carr; who is the present Secretary of State: Secretary of State, General Joseph B. Carr; Comptroller, M. R. Davenport, of Steuben; Attorney General, Leslie W. Russell; Treasurer, James C. Husted, State Engineer, Silas Reyman; Judge of the Court of Appeals, Francis M. Finch. The convention adjourned at one o'clock after appointing the State Committee.

The Cold Snap.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 7.—Dispatches from all parts of New England indicate that the thermometer is below freezing point, and considerable damage has been done to the crops. A dispatch from Stowe, Vt., says that it began snowing there yesterday forenoon, and that the fruit is frozen on the trees.

WOLFBORO, N. H. Oct. 7.—The change in the weather on Tuesday night was the most extreme and sudden ever known in this vicinity. The thermometer has fallen 52 degrees since Monday afternoon and it stood at 28 degrees yesterday morning. Grapes and squashes and other plants throughout this region are frozen. Snow squalls were frequent all day.

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 7.—Reports from all parst of Androscoggin county show a hard freeze on Tuesday night. All tender vegetation has been killed and much fruit frozen and blown off the trees. A snow squall prevailed yesterday afternoon.

BRADFORD, Pa. Oct. 7.—The weather Tuesday night and yesterday was bitterly cold. Ice formed an inch thick in the city. At Marshburg, five miles from Bradford, one inch of snow fell.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 7.—There was frost in Wisconsin on Tuesday night.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 7.—A cold wave has entered the Hudson River valley. On Tuesday morning the mercury marked 76° and yesterday morning 28°. Reports from the interior speak of ice and frost.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—A great deal of damage was done by frost on Tuesday night in this vicinity, and ice was formed a quarter of an inch thick.

FARTHER POINT, Quebec, Oct. 7.—The weather is very cold, with flurries of snow and a strong northwest wind.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 7.—The thermometer here yesterday registered 37 degrees.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 7.—The thermometer stood here yesterday at 35 degrees.

Heavy Frost in the South.

DANVILLE, Va., Oct. 7.—There was a heavy and killing frost throughout this region last night, and great apprehensions are entertained of serious and extensive damage to the growing tobacco. In the fields near Danville the plants were badly bitten.

An Ex-Governor in Trouble.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Ex-Governor Moses, of South Carolina, arrested yesterday for obtaining money by false pretenses from Major Hall was arraigned to-day and the case set down for future examination. Further complaint was made against Moses by John D. Townsend, counsel for the Committee on Crime, who accused him of swindling him (Townsend) out of money on the plea of furnishing Townsend some valuable papers touching election frauds at the South, and that they would expose great corruption. Those papers, however, never came to hand.

The Connecticut Town Elections.

HARDFORD, Oct. 4.—The town elections took place in Connecticut to-day. Hartford elects a Republican majority in the Board of Selectmen, and the Republican elect the Treasurer; Democrats the Town Clerk and Collector. The remaining officers are about evenly divided. The town votes for license by a large majority.

New Britain is Republican by 250 majority.

Norwich is Republican by 550 majority, and gives 75 maiority for license.

Shocking Story from Lancaster.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 7.—Edward Sanders and Philip Rogers, two notorious characters of this city, at a late hour last night forced their way into the room of Mary Seymour, living on John street, this city, and in the presence of her three children Sanders criminally assaulted her. The woman struggled desperately to escape, and at length succeeded. Sanders followed her into the street, knocking her down several times. Mrs. Seymour escaped to a neighbor's house, where she died from the effects of her injuries in a few moments. Both men were arrested and are now in jail charged with murder.

A Dime Novel Victim.

Local Small Talk.

—Apple-butter boilings are now in order.

—The Washington cornet band furnished the music at the fairgrounds Thursday.

—The weight of the transgressor is about fourteen ounces to the pound, especially if he is selling butter in the market.

—A letter is held for postage in the Bellefonte postoffice addressed to Jacob Zimmerman, Walker P. O., Centre county.

—Union county's prison is without an inmate, while Cambria county is boarding twenty prisoners at the county's expense, most of whom are tramps.

—Local freight was detained Wednesday nearly an hour in leaving town by the unusually heavy freight traffic being done just now over the valley road.

—The old Mill Hall furnace, lately leased by Captain Austin Curtin, was started on Wednesday last, after having stood idle for more than twenty years. The people seem greatly pleased over the matter, too.

—Little Willie Keeler, the child who was accidentally shot on Friday evening the 30th ult. by his brother, is getting along finely, and Dr. Dorworth, who is attending him say he expects no further trouble now.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. Nancy Reed, on Wednesday afternoon, was largely attended, and the remains were interred in the Union cemetery whither they were followed by a large concourse of relatives and friends.

—The bowling alley in the basement of the Bush House, is about completed, and will be thrown open to the public in a few days. There are two sixty-foot alleys, both solid and in excellent condition, and will be just the place for lovers of that kind of sport to amuse themselves.

—The handsome bay horse belonging to Mr. James Potter, which was expected to die the other day, and which was turned out for that purpose, is now recovering and will soon be able to be driven again. The horse was suffering severely from lung fever, which was caused by over driving and chilling.

—Chief Police Hammach, of Philipsburg, brought to the county prison two negroes, named "Gust" Coleman and Sam Ranpolph, who were caught in the attempt of robing the store of Lyon & Co., at that place. They will be confined until November court, when they will receive their trial.

—A "Cheapside" boy on Wednesday made a narrow escape from death as the Snow Shoe engine was backing down the track. He was playing on the railroad, not giving any notice to the approaching train and had the engineer not seen him the boy would have been killed before he had time to get out of the way.

—Mrs. Mary B., wife of Sidney T. Muffly, died in Philadelphia on Friday, the 30th ult., and was buried on Monday, the 3d, at Woodland cemetery, near that city. Mrs. Muffly had many friends in Bellefonte and vicinity who will be pained to learn of her death, and the sorrowing husband has their tenderest sympathy. The cause of her death we failed to learn.

—Rev. Martin Spangler, presiding elder of the eastern district of the United Brethren Conference, of which Bellefonte is a part, died on Saturday, the 1st instant, at his residence in Altoona of malignant typhoid fever. His death was unexpected, and the conference being in session at time, the announcement produced a universal sadness among the members. Rev. Spangler was an able minister, and was well known and had many warm friends in this section. He was a consistent Christian, a kind father and a good husband, and in his death the church loses a most efficient worker. He died as he lived—full of faith in the Holy Ghost.

—Dr. Howard Crosby, said to be one of the greatest Greek scholars living and a close Biblical student, has made a prediction, which he claims is based on Biblical facts, that the world will come to an end in the year 2290 without fail, provided of course railroad accidents and drouths don't interfere with the present arrangements. This is a little rough on the present generation of newspaper men, who were flattering themselves on the near approach of the long-looked-for millennial, and were making all necessary arrangements to write it up in style and give their readers all the particulars of the great event. Now, this delay is an aggravation too utterly utter. We have the consolation of knowing, however, that it will show to the untutored world at least one of the discouragements newspaper men have to meet.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Nancy Thompson Reed, of Bellefonte.

Mrs. Nancy Reed, whose death, which occurred on Saturday evening, the first inst., has already been recorded, was born in Kishacoquillas valley, Mifflin county, in June, 1798, and at the time of her death was in the 84th year of her age. She was the daughter of Moses Thompson, probably the earliest settler of that valley, whose history dates back to 1765, when he emigrated from England and took up land in that beautiful valley which still bears the name of one of the most noted Indian chiefs, "Kishacoquillas." Here he resided and prospered among the wilds of the then barren country, living in the most primitive manner, and where he raised to manhood and womanhood a large family of children, the last of whom, after having outlived the allotted period of life, has just been called to worship at that heavenly shrine which a noble and consecrated life eminently merits.

In 1819, at the age of 21 years, Nancy Thompson was united in marriage with Foster Milliken, one of the leading young men of that region, but who while serving a term as sheriff of Mifflin county, died in Lewistown in 1831, twelve years after their marriage. Four children were the result of that union, Samual, Moses Thompson (named after the grandfather), James and Marion L. three of whom are still living. Moses Thompson, or "Thompson," as he was more generally called, was a wealthy and prominent resident of Bellefonte, but his death occurred very suddenly more than a decade since, caused by an affection of the heart. Samual, the oldest of the family, is a resident of Plainfield, N. J., but he has been for about a quarter of a century successfully conducting a large business in New York city. James, the third member of the family, still claims Bellefonte as his home, and where he is claimed an honored citizen and lives in and enjoys the perfect confidence and esteem of our citizens. At present, accompanied by his handsome niece, Miss Clara Milliken, the only descendent of his deceased brother, he is traveling in Europe, where the news of his mother's death reached him, and is expected home in a few weeks. Marion L. resided with her mother, to whom she was greatly attached and devoted and whose death she mourns most sadly.

Mrs. Milliken, after living in widowhood for about thirteen years, was again married in 1844 to Colonel William Reed, of Mifflin county, who has been dead a number of years. She removed to Bellefonte to take up her peramanent abode on the first of January, 1861, and until the death of her son resided in the house now occupied by Mrs. Roland Curtin, on the corner of Allegheny and Howard streets. She then took possession of the handsome residence of her deceased son on Allegheny street, where she has since pleasantly resided and from whence the angel of Death at last removed her spirit.

For more than half a century she had been an active member of the Presbyterian church, and in the faith of which she trained and lived to enjoy the company of all her children in religious worship. She was a constant and regular attendant at every service, and when in her declining years she became too feeble to walk she was carried thither in a wagon provided especially for her use. Her life and character was such that left no doubt of her gaining an immortality to which her consecration to the Master's will richly deserves, and in her death we have the beautiful lesson of a Christian life whose teachings time can never destroy.

"Sister and brothers who bewail
A form the grave hath hid,
Whose tears have fallen thick and fast
Upon the coffin lid:
Dwell not upon the darksome tomb
Which doth her limbs imprison—
For lo! from thence a voice declares,
She is not here—but risen!"

—The following item, which we find going the rounds of our exchanges, we publish for the benefit of those continually grumbling when their paper is not filled with exactly the kind of news they would like to have: A great many people think a newspaper should have about a page of local news, whether anything happens or not. Deluded mortals; local editors cannot make people break their necks, commit suicide, run away with their neighbor's wives, or do any other exciting things which go to make up the material out of which the local reporter delights to weave paragraphs, to be served up each week. Furnishing domestic news where there is none, is very much like extracting blood from a turnip. It is no more than right, however, that those persons who grumble at the lack of local news in their paper, should stop and think whether they could not have given the editor an item or two worth printing, and if so why let them hold their peace, or growl at their own remissness.

Boys' Branch Y. M. C. A.

The second meeting of this branch was held in the association room on Monday evening of last week. Fifty-six new recruits joined, making the total number in the organization now one hundred and fifteen. A large portion of the time was taken in completing the register of the branch which contains the name, age, residence, parent's or guardian's name and occupation, and the Sunday school and day school of each boy. A short address was also made by A. O. Furst, Esq., and a comic selection rendered by Master Harry Keller. Chas. Hughes was elected permanent captain of Co. B, and W. F. Reeder, of Co. F. The meetings will be held on Monday evening of each week from 7 to 8 o'clock. Next week music will probably be furnished by a string band, and also by the colored quartette, an account given of the boy's work at Harrisburg, a short address, a recitation or dialogue by some of the boys, and other exercises. The new recruits on Monday evening last were as follows:

Co. A.—Sam'l Irwin, Willie Hunter, Harry Wolf, John Derstine, Willie Burchfield, Willis Williams, F. E. Benner, George Miller, Max. Furey, Lewis Furey, William Seibert, Robt. Taylor, Jos. Mitchell, Willis Woodring, Harry Irwin, Bruce Garman, Kline Woodring.

Co. B.—Frank Rhoads, John Shugert, Robert Woodring, John Long, William Marshall, Harry Gottshall, Charles Moore, John Given, Edwin Sunday, Harry Fulton, Harry Miller.

Co. C.—William Brew, St. Clair Roberts, George Valentine, Lewis Lose.

Co. D.—Alex. Hoover, Willie Hoover.

Co. E.—Jerome Harper, Newton Haupt, Orie Laird, Willie Garman, John McNichols, Frank Taylor, Guy Trafford, Harry Williams, James Harris, Blanchard Zimmerman, Walter Campbell, Wash. Johnston, William Pennington, Elijah Shope, Furst Ginter, William Derstine, Benj. Pennington.

Co. F.—Philip McGinley, Frank Van Ormer, Hugh Taylor.

Co. G.—Rush Williams, Frank Shope.

The total numbers in the various companies are now as now as follows: A, 26; B, 19; C, 17; D, 12; E, 26; F, 11; G, 8—Total, 115.

The Car Works For Sale.

A circular has been issued announcing that the Bellefonte car works will be offered for sale by auction, at the office of the works in Bellefonte, at 2 o'clock p. m., on Thursday, October 27th. The circular states that the works, which have a capacity of eight cars a day, occupy nearly nine acres of ground, and have every facility and convenience for an extensive business, with a reservation of nearly two acres of ground for future requirements. The buildings consist of a foundry, blacksmith shop, machine shop, framing shop and an erecting shop, together with a dry house and office, all of which are brick, and a paint shop, framed. Just what the object of this is no one but those directly concerned knows but the circular states that the proprietor is retiring from business, and wishing all parties to have an opportunity of purchasing this property is not offering it at private sale. Possession will be given, in accordance with terms of the sale, on the 10th day of December next, under penalty of $25 per day for any delay caused by the seller. The terms of the sale will be ten per centum of purchase money at time of sale, twenty per cent. on the 27th of November, 1881, and ten per cent. each year, with interest at six per cent. on deferred payments, payable annually, until paid for. This seems to be an excellent opportunity for somebody with money, and we see no reason why the works should not sell for a large amount. The circular states that further particulars may be obtained from S. R. Hopkins, 76 Chambers street, New York; William Lawson, Williamstown, Mass., or Miller Tiffin, general manager, Bellefonte, Pa.

—A shooting contest between members of Co. B, of Bellefonte, and Co. H, of Johnstown, will shortly take place at the fair grounds in this place. The exact date has not been decided, but it will likely take place some time between the 10th and 25th of this month.

—Company C, of Hollidaysburg, Captain Stewart's command, has been selected to represent the 5th regiment at the Yorktown celebration. This is said to be the "crack" company of the regiment, and was consequently selected on those grounds.

—Mr. J. W. Gephart is one of the most interested persons in town over the boys' department, or rather "Memorial Branch," of the Y. M. C. A., and seems to take delight in working for its success.

—Our merchants are busy arranging their fall goods, and the next thing to occupy their attention will be to let the public know what they have got.

—Mourning decorations are still hanging over Bellefonte.

Patton Township Items.

We feel as though we would not do justice to our excellent friend, Dr. J M. Bush, if we failed to record some of his almost miraculous cures in our midst. He has brought Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gray through a very severe spell of sickness when they were given up by everybody, and they are now doing well; also the curing of a daughter of John Stine, of dropsy, who was in such distress that she even prayed for death to end her sufferings. But Dr. Bush, by nursing night and day, even holding her head for hours at a time, has added one more case to his already large success of thirty-one years of practice in our neighborhood. May he live as long as the writer to heal all our diseases.

The laboring men of Scotia ore mines held a basket picnic on Geo. Biddle's farm, which was largely attended from all sections of the surrounding country. Three brass bands were present, who all received and merited high encomiums of praise for the excellent music. They were the Washington coronet band, Lemont coronet band and the Pine Grove Mills coronet band.

A good address was given by the Rev. Mr. Mendenhall, of the M. E. church, Pine Grove. There was a good attendance, good order and altogether they had a pleasant time. More anon. OTHELLO.

Port Matilda Notes.

Our Port Matilda correspondent furnishes us with the following:

At the recent conference of the United Brethren church, the following delegates were present: Altoona district, L. W. Stahl, presiding elder; Altoona, J. Medsger; Tyrone, B. J. Hummel; Bellefonte, J. T. Fallhelm; Port Matilda, N. Conley; Clearfield, J. M. Smith; Otterbern, R. S. Woodward; Juniata, E. A. Zeek; Three Springs, L. M. Gates; Liverpool, J. A. Clemm, East Salem, J. Landis.

Two weddings have occurred in this place lately, one being the marriage of Rev. Jacob B. Moore, of Buffalo Run, with Miss Alfretta Henderson, of Martha, and the other Mr. John S. Dougherty, of Altoona, with Miss Sadie S. Buck, of Warrior's Mark. The Rev. Stahl was the officiating minister on both occasions. The parties are all highly respectable, and we wish them all the grandest possible success in life. PHIL.

—There seems to be a good deal of speculation indulged in just now as to the fate of the car shops. To alleviate all public apprehension we will state that there is no danger of the works being suspended. Too much money has been expended in putting the establishment in order, and there is no intention whatever of suspending operations.

—Some one recommends pouring a gill of whiskey in the shoes at morning and noon as a cure for malarial fever. The way some Bellefonte people do is to pour it in the natural orifice and let it soak down to the shoes. This is much more convenient, and besides it doesn't waste the whiskey.

—Policeman Montgomery Thursday morning had considerable difficulty in persuading a couple of fellows from the country that they couldn't lie in a public place and sleep off the effects of their potations. After considerable mumbling among themselves they marched off to seek quarters more secluded.

—Mr. William Parks, traveling engineer for the Pennsylvania railroad was in town Thursday examining the patent packing process of Engineer Temple, of the Snow Shoe road, now on exhibition at Gordon & Landis' machine shops, and is said to have been greatly pleased with it.

—Two Italians are confined in the county prison for assault and battery with attempt to kill upon a fellow-countryman at Pennsylvania Furnace the other day, and Sheriff Spangler has great difficulty in making them understand him when he talks.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—Bellefonte ought to do something towards swelling the Garfield monument fund.

—A Cheapside girl who couldn't make her bangs stay bung said she was having a tuft time of it.

—Saturday night was unusually quiet, and scarcely a dozen drunks were seen on our streets.

—A large number of farmers were in town Saturday, although market in the morning was not largely attended.

—An exchange says that thirty persons were poisoned in a Michigan town recently from eating bologna sausage. This comes from wearing brass collars on dogs.

—It is claimed the reason so many people neglect their own business is because they exhaust all their energies attending to the business of other people.

—The Catholic festival and fair which has been progressing for the past week in Reynold's building on Bishop street will continue another week, and everybody is invited to attend it.

—We call the attention of members of Gregg Post, of this place, to the order of Commander Harris relative to memorial services to be held in the Court House on Saturday evening, the 15th instant.

—The following officers of Centre Lodge, No. 153, I. O. O. F., have been installed for the ensuing half year: H. Beck, N. G.; W. B. Rankin, V. G.; and W. J. Fleming, Asst. Secretary. John I. Rankin, Esq., was elected representative to the Grand Lodge.

—The members of Lock Haven base ball club, who were to have played the College boys Friday at the fair grounds, did not put in an appearance at the appointed time. It was probably lucky for them that they didn't.

—We return thanks to our good-looking friend, Deputy Sheriff Spangler, for a pair of handsome folding pocket scissors. Reub is one of Bellefonte's brightest young men, and we are not saying this on account of the scissors, either.

—Judge Junkin, of Perry county, has decided that landlords have no right to sell liquor by the bottle unless they know what and who it is for. They can be held criminally responsible if any liquor thus sold is consumed by either men of intoxicated habits or minors.

—Mr. E. C. Bender, formerly editor and proprietor of the Philipsburg Journal, has removed his family to York, Pa., where he will reside in the future. Besides conducting the newspaper, Mr. Bender was also engaged in the lumbering business, at which he was very successful.

—This is the pleasant manner in which the Greensburg Herald alludes to a visitor to that town: A. A. Sanner, for a short time local editor of the Connellsville Courier, for a day and a half a reporter on the Pittsburgh Times, and for many long years a dead beat, was in town last week.

—The price of butter has gone up so high that an editor can't reach it with a ten-foot pole. Many of them have lately become disciples of Col. Sellers and are using pebble stones for potatoes. They are just as good, but lie a little heavy on the stomach, and you do not enjoy them until after using them a few days.

—Company B has had no official notification of the selection of Company C, of Holidaysburg, to represent the 5th Regiment at Yorktown, and the report may yet turn out to be unfounded. The members of Company B are inclined to the opinion that if the best company is selected they will stand a pretty good chance of representing the 5th at Yorktown.

—Someone stole a valuable hound belonging to Isaac Haupt one night last week. Mr. Haupt had sold the dog the day before to a party residing somewhere in the country, but had neglected to deliver him to the new owner. He offers a liberal reward for any evidence that will lead to the recovery of the dog, and he promises to make it lively for the thief if he catches him.

—The following item, which we take from the Huntingdon News, we dedicate to those hereabouts who are interested in the speculative life insurance business: "A certain individual in Tyrone township, Perry county, had graveyard insurance risks amounting to almost $100,000, on which he paid many assessments. His subject died, and last week his company paid him off in full. He received the sum of $9 on the whole amount."

THE FAIR.

A Large Attendance but not an Overly Large Display.

The county fair on Wednesday morning opened very auspiciously, and the indications were that this year's exhibition would be no less successful in every particular than any heretofore given by the society. Early in the morning exhibitors began arriving, and soon the large building on the hill was filled as full as usual with some very fine specimens of handiwork of every kind, and the buildings outside controlled by private parties were being fixed up advantageously for the occasion. The restaurant men were flying about getting things in readiness to feed the hungry crowd who come unprepared to-day, and the irrepressible fakir, with his wooden images, was on hand at the earliest hour pleading with the crowd to take "three throws for only five cents, and a cigar every time you throw. There were no amusements yesterday outside of the several contests between private individuals while exercising their horses. Up to last night there were 4,000 articles entered for prizes and exhibition, but this number will be increased somewhat to-day. The fast races take place this afternoon, and if the weather continues as favorable as it was yesterday an enormous crowd is expected to be present.

THURSDAY'S EXHIBITION.

The fair Thursday, so far as attendance was concerned, was a grand success, fully six thousand people being on the grounds at one time. Early in the morning people began coming from the country, and from about 8 o'clock to 11 a steady stream of vehicles of every description carried people thither. The large crescent-shaped hill in the afternoon was perfectly alive with people, and the sprinkling of groups here and there, dressed in all the various colors, formed a pleasing contrast to the green sod below and the blue sky above and was a most beautiful sight. The day was a most lovely one, and it really seemed as though we had a special favor of Providence. Although a little chilly in the morning, it was not long before the warm rays of the sun removed all chilliness and made the day the most pleasant we have had this fall by all odds. As to the fair itself we cannot say that it was overly successful. The racing was passably good, but we are of the opinion that if the judges had placed their protests on this infernal jockeying the spectators would have been much better pleased and the racing more successful.

In the home and horticultural departments nothing new or of interest was to be seen. The same things that were exhibited there ten years ago still remain and greet the visitor with the same familiar air as of old. In the home department there were a number of fine silk haps and a few crayon pictures worthy of special notice, but outside of these there was nothing to attract or interest any one. In the horticultural department a few large pumpkins and a number of rather nice-looking apples and peaches about made up the list, and the judges were not driven to extremes in deciding as to superiority.

Mr. John Bartroff and Alexander & Co. exhibited a number of very fine buggies and carriages, and which were greatly admired by many of the visitors. The private stands of Bunnell & Aikens were fixed up to advantage, and large numbers of people flocked about them all day long. Messrs. Gordon & Landis exhibited a fine lot of wagons and agricultural implements, and Alexander & Co, had perhaps the finest display of agricultural implements on the ground, and deserve a good deal of credit for the part they took in the matter.

The stock department was well represented, and quite a number of very handsome cattle and horses were exhibited. Two large hogs, belonging to Mr. John Caldwell, of this place, were especially fine, and attracted a good deal of attention. This department seemed to give general satisfaction, at least we heard no complaints about it.

The amusement department was about up to the average, although the first race in the afternoon was a little above the general expectation. There were five horses entered in this race, as follows: Woodlawn, by T. J. Middough, of Mifflintown; Belle, by Charles Wooden, of Tyrone; John King, by Leon King, of Williamsport; Little Major, by Robert Peck, of Lock Haven, and Bill, by J. F. Cook, of Howard. The race was for best three in five, for a purse of $75—$50 to first and $25 to to second. The first heat was won by little Major, but the three last, and race, were won by John, King, the best time being 2:50.

In the county race Daniel Berliew entered Bay Kate, and Wm. Larimer entered Brown Dick. The former won in three straight heats, the best time being 3:10

FRIDAY'S AMUSEMENTS.

Rather a large crowd assembled at the fair grounds on Friday to witness the several contests advertised for the day. Like Thursday, the day opened a little cool, but soon the insolating rays of Old Sol shed a warmth that made it pleasant and inviting. A few drops of rain about noon settled the dust a little, but the continous driving over the roads and and on the track soon stirred it up again, and before the races were over great clouds of it were flying about. Thursday evening exhibitors began removing their things, so that yesterday afternoon very little of interest could be found on the grounds. It was intended to make the day one of amusement more than anything else, and very few of those who attended on Friday either desired or cared to see anything but the racing. About fifteen hundred people were on the grounds in the afternoon, and it was generally remarked that the attendance on Friday was larger for the closing day than it had been for years.

The amusements throughout were of a vastly superior character to what they have been heretofore. The trotting was most excellent, and everybody waxed excited as the horses came down the "home stretch" so closely together that it was hard to decide which was ahead.

The programme opened with a base ball contest in the morning, between the State College and Bellefonte clubs. The Lock Haven boys, who were to have contested with the College club, failed to come to time but an impromptu nine were picked up on the grounds and the game commenced. The College boys came off victors, the game standing at the end of nine innings thirty-one to twenty-two, in their favor.

The racing contest in the afternoon for the $375 purse was the great and interesting feature of the day. There were three horses entered for this race, as follows: Mishap, by T. J. Middough; John King, by Leon King, and Little Major, by Robert Peck. After several ineffectual attempts the horses got off finely, and after trotting three times around the track they came down the home stretch side by side passing before the judges' stand with Mishap only about a neck in the lead, thus winning a hotly-contested heat in 2:47, with Little Major second.

In the second heat the horses also got off nicely, and during the entire heat Little Major and Mishap clung together in fine style, but the former won by nearly half a length. Time, 2:44½.

In the third heat the horses all started evenly, and kept so for two rounds, when Mishap took the lead and kept it, winning in 2:47 by nearly a length, with Little Major second and John King third.

The fourth heat contained fully as much interest as any of the others. After starting finely the three horses kept abreast nearly the entire distance, but at the finish Mishap took the lead and won the heat and race in 2:47½. Little Major took second money and John King third.

An impromptu race was gotten up between Burlew's bay and Wooden's gray, best two in three, but the gray won easily in two straight heats.

A walking match of one-third of a mile, for a purse of $5, in which A. Pullen, Charles Schmidt and Wm. Leary were contestants, was won by the former in 2:10, with Leary second and Schmidt last.

This constituted the amusements of the day, and everybody retired much better pleased than they did on the day previous.

Company B Shootists.

A few members of Company B repaired to their target grounds on Saturday afternoon last, on the farm of Mr. William Humes, near Coleville, and indulged in a little rifle practice, with the following result:

VanPelt	5	4	4	3	4—18
Hale	4	3	2	2	4—15
Wetzel	2	0	2	3	3—10
Morrison	0	2	2	2	4—10
Geissinger	4	3	3	3	4—17

The above was at a range of one hundred yards. The scorce below was shot at two hundred yards, but with a one-hundred-yard target:

VanPelt	4	0	4	0	0— 8
Hale	0	0	2	5	2— 9
Wetzel	4	3	0	0	2— 9
Geissinger	0	0	4	4	0— 8

—Dr. Thomas R. Hayes on Friday removed a large bean from the ear of a young child of Mr. Andrew Lucas, which was imbedded in the child's head several days, causing it severe pain. Several physicians had previously examined the child's ear, but gave it as their opinion that nothing was wrong. Dr. Hayes was then called in, and after examination applied his instruments and removed the bean, which had become so swollen that it was very difficult to remove. The parents are greatly pleased over the Doctor's successful operation and their child's release from misery.

He Wanted a Cheap Feed.

Everybody came to town Thursday. Several young men from the country were here. Likewise their girls. One of the young men, accompanied by one of the young girls, struck the borough about 10 a. m., and about 11 a. m. marched hand in hand in radiant procession into the Bush House office. The young man looked as if he considered himself a whole team with a dog under the wagon, while the lass shook out her curls with a gallant toss as if to say, "I don't care three cents what you think of it." Straight to the office counter marched they, objects of interest to all, and no sooner espied Landlord Teller at the desk than the festive buck yelled, "Say, landlord, what'll ye charge me and my girl for dinner?" "Fifty cents apiece," blandly and quietly responded William R., as he beamed with a genial look upon the two rural babes from the woods. "Fifty cents apiece! fifty cents apiece!" fairly shouted the young man from the country; "Why, landlord, do you take us for a bank? I want some dinner mighty bad and so does Miranda, but great heavens, landlord, we haven't got but seventy-five cents, and we've got to get into the fair if we die for it. Why, landlord, I didn't know as anybody ever charged fifty cents for a dinner. I allowed Miranda and me could come to the fair and get two dinners on seventy-five cents as slick as butter. I guess we can't do it though." "No siree, John, put in the lass, we must go to the fair if we bust a trace, and I guess five cents worth of doughnuts will be dinner enough for us. So come along." Away they marched as bravely as if they had just conquored a world, and a hundred to one had a big time on their doughnut dinner and the show at the fair grounds.

A Brace of Accidents.

Mr. Hugh Adams, one of Martha Furnace's enterprising and prosperous citizens, while driving along the public road along the line of Bald Eagle valley railroad between Locust Mills and the house of J. F. Williams, last week, was overtaken by local freight west, which so frightened his horse that he in his prancing threw Mr. Adams from his buggy, dislocating a shoulder and cutting and bruising his head and face severely. Mr. Adams managed to reach the residence of George W. Miles, near by, where he remained for some time, not being able to be removed to his home. Dr. Bush, of Buffalo Run, was sent for, but he pronounced the dislocated joint too much swollen to be replaced at that time, but we understand he successfully replaced the disjointed member yesterday. Mr. Adams has been suffering much pain ever since this unfortunate occurrence, but we hope he may speedily recover from the effects of his terrible shaking up.

While Mr. Harrison Kline and wife, who reside in Spring township, were driving home Saturday afternoon from Bellefonte, where they had been laying in their usual weekly supply of provisions and attending to some other private matters, they stopped at the "Nigh" ore bank for the purpose of watering their horses. In some manner they both took fright, and in turning short upset the wagon, throwing Mr. and Mrs. Kline violently to the ground, and severely injuring both, although, happily, neither seriously. They were picked up and kindly cared for by the people living in that locality, and afterwards taken home, where they are getting along finely.

That Man Giddings.

A notice recently appeared in these columns concerning the movements of an individual giving his name as Giddings, operating among the farmers of Westmoreland county, but who answers the description of the man "Churchill," who "took in" the honest yeomanry of Halfmoon not long since by representing himself as a Lancaster county capitalists who wanted to make an investment and would start a "creamery" in their midst, but after sponging several weeks departed with a suit of borrowed clothes. It seems that Churchill, or Giddings, or whatever his right name may be, has been playing a sharp game out there, and has got the farmers in such a position that they cannot well help themselves. Last year he made his appearance, and represented himself as an agent for the State Agricultural Society. He gave every farmer who was willing to take the grain two bushels of wheat which he said was Chili wheat, and the farmers signed a contract agreeing to pay him by giving him one-half the product in the early part of September, 1881. The farmers planted the grain and now find that it is nothing more nor less than old Mediterranean. The time for delivery is at hand, and some of the sons of toil are making an effort to resist the collection of the wheat by Giddings. Attorneys have been employed and the case will be fought. If his plans are not thwarted he will take from seven to ten thousand bushels of wheat from the farmers of Westmoreland county alone.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Malin Fryberger, of Philipsburg, is spending a few days with friends in Bellefonte.

Miss Mollie K. Neff, of Huntingdon, is visiting her sister, Mrs. L. L. Brown, on Linn street.

Mrs. Annie Ray, of Tyrone, and her daughter, Miss Emma, are visiting the family of R. M. Magee, Esq.

Mr. Hiram Hoffer, an old Bellefonter now residing in Philipsburg, is now in town taking in the fair.

Mrs. R. Crittenden left on Monday morning on a visit to friends in Massachusetts.

Miss Jane Harris and Miss Mary Potter are visiting friends in Philadelphia, and will be absent several weeks.

Mr. James Harris and wife have returned from Pennsylvania Furnace, where they were rusticating several weeks.

Miss Mary McBride and Miss Annie B. Harris left on mail east on Monday morning for a short trip to New York city.

Mr. John Contner, one of Milroy's active young men, is in town, sojourning at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. George H. Wolf, on Allegheny street.

P. G. Meek and Jack L. Spangler left on mail west on Monday for Harrisburg where, as the former alleged, they would arrange an "Independent Democratic Convention."

Mr. George Potter, son of the late Dr. George L. Potter of this place, is at present home on a visit from Renovo, where he is in the employment of the railroad company.

Hon. John C. Newmyer, of Pittsburgh, was registered at the Bush House yesterday, as were also A. S. Grow, of the Lock Haven Journal, and C. W. Wooden, of the City Hotel, Tyrone.

Mr. Frank Crosthwaite came down from Osceola on Tuesday, the 4th instant, to visit his parents and see the fair. Frank is a Bellefonte boy, but at present is employed as day operator in the telegraph office at Osceola.

Miss Emily Valentine, the accomplished and handsome daughter of Robert Valentine, Esq., departed on Monday morning for Philadelphia, where she will spend the winter months attending a private school in that city.

Rev. Mr. Butler and lady, lately returned from Ning Po, China, where they were engaged for a number of years as missionaries of the Presbyterian church, are at present visiting in town, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Humes, on Allegheny street.

Prothonotary Harper and ex-Prothonotary Williams, who formed part of the hunting party encamped on the Alleghenies near Beech Creek, returned Thursday. The balance of the party will remain a few days yet before returning. The party is meeting with pretty fair success, having killed up to Wednesday night, one deer (weighing 43 pounds which they didn't get), one ground hog, two snakes, one chip munk, a crow and three blue jays. They have done considerable "shooting" though.

Shall it be Thus?

We understand that about $1,500 have been raised among our citizens for the purpose of carrying forward the work begun by the Young Men's Christian Association of this place, and that a general secretary is to be employed whose sole duty will be to look after the welfare of the association, to which he will devote all his time and attention and draw a regular salary. It is further stated that a young man is to be brought here from a distance to fill this position and draw this salary. Now, we do not wish to be understood as finding fault with this movement: but quite to the contrary. The Y. M. C. A. has done a noble work in this community, and there is still a large field demanding its attention, but the office it has created will prove a sinecure for some one. Nor do we for a moment doubt such an office necessary. We believe that it has been sadly needed for a long time; but what we do object to is the sending away from home for a young man to fill the position. It seems to be natural for Bellefonte people when they want a person to fill either a responsible or lucrative position to fly off and get a stranger, although there may be dozens of worthy young men of our own, perfectly qualified and only too willing to fill it themselves. This is by no means as it should or ought to be, and our people can never hope to hold the affections of our young men until they inaugurate a reform in this matter.

This money was contributed by our generous citizens for a legitimate and worthy purpose, and we hold that the association management have no moral right to assume this privilege when there are so many young men in our midst willing to accept and capable to fill the office, notable among whom is one who labored earnestly and gratuitously for the association's welfare for a number of years in the capacity to which they have now attached a salary and seek another to fill.

We hope this matter may be carefully considered, and that the Y. M. C. A. management may depart from the beaten path so long trodden to our everlasting disgrace and select one of our own number—one known, tested and found true—and not send for an entire stranger, unknown to us all, to fill this important position. Let them act religiously in their selection, and we have reason to believe their work will be blessed.

ASSAULTED AND ABDUCTED.

Is it Bellefonte's McKeever who is Concerned in the Affair?

Last Friday's issue of the York Evening Dispatch contained the following account of a most outrageous assault and abduction, in which one William McKeever, supposed to be he who lately acted as manager of the Brockerhoff House in this place, but who was summarily discharged several weeks since for misconduct, is concerned. That this McKeever is the same who lately resided in this place seems to be fixed as a fact because his home was in Dillsburg, and the one implicated in this affair is also claimed to reside in that place, although there is a possibility of there being two men of the same name. Here is what the York paper says:

"Sheriff Atland yesterday arrived in York with William McKeever and William Spahr, of Dillsburg, charged with assault and battery and false imprisonment. They both entered into recognizance for their appearance when wanted. The circumstances of the case are as follows: On the 29th of September, it is alleged, Mrs. Barntz, a widow, residing in Carlisle, with her son Harley, aged about 14, visited her brother-in-law, George P. Weaver, residing in York county, about three miles above Dillsburg. A few days afterwards McKeever appeared at the house, representing that he was sent by Governor Hoyt to see her son and ascertain how large he was. When the boy was produced McKeever attempted to arrest him saying that he held a warrant from the Governor, but not producing it. The lad made his escape and ran into the mountain brush, about half a mile away, where he was pursued and caught by McKeever, who handcuffed and carried him back to the house. There, when his mother wanted to change the boy's clothes, McKeever himself went up stairs, put on the boy's best suit, scattering the other clothing about the room. He then took the young Barntz in his buggy to the depot at Dillsburg and went away with him in the train. McKeever returned to Dillsburg in a few days, but without the boy, who has not yet been heard from, and his whereabouts are unknown. The lad is said to be the sole heir to property worth $30,000. The warrants for arrest were issued by Justice Beaverson."

MARRIED.

GEIST.—In Union township, on the 15th of September, A. D. 1881, John Geist, aged 67 years, 4 months and 18 days.

WILLIAMS.—At her residence, near New Millport, on Sunday, September 18th, 1881, of dysentery, Eliza Maria Williams, wife of Deacon John S. Williams, aged 60 years, 2 months and 2 days.

Sister Williams was born in Centre county, and in her 15th year gave herself to Christ and joined the Milesburg Baptist church. On going to Clearfield county she joined the Curwensville Baptist church, and on the organization of the New Millport church became a member. She has ever adorned the doctrine of God our Saviour with a godly walk and conversation. Her greatest anxiety was to live to see all her children become Christians and the cause of Christ built up. She will be missed in the family, church and Sunday-school and in the community, but our loss is her gain, "for she rests from her labors and her works they do follow her." By request of her pastor, Elder E. H. Hovey, Rev. Samuel Miles, her old pastor and intimate friend, preached the funeral sermon.
